DISABLED VETERANS

Splendidly Entertained Last Friday by Mr. Louis K. Liggett at Chestnut Hill

Over 400 wounded and disabled veterans were royally entertained last Friday at the beautiful home of Mr. Louis K. Liggett at Chestnut Hill. The men were first taken to the State House in automobiles and then driven out thru the Newtons as far as Norumbega Park, reaching Mr. Liggett's home in time for luncheon. Col. Edward L. Logan presided at the luncheon and the after dinner speakers were Gov. Coolidge, General Edwards and Admiral Robinson.

The Governor said in part: "The nation and the commonwealth of Massachusetts recognize their debt to the men who deserted the peaceful occupations of life to wear the uniform when they were needed, and there are none of those who served who deserve this interest more than the men whose health suffered as a result of their service. As an expression of the interest and gratitude of the people this splendid hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Liggett is an example. They exemplify the esteem in which you are held by all the people, and they themselves are duly proud of the fact that their own son served with distinction with you."

"At the time the nation needed you you came to its rescue. The nation has a right to call upon its citizens for duty. You recognized that right, and now you have a like right to call upon the nation to restore you to well-being. There is no nation that can give all it desires to its citizens, but this nation and this commonwealth have the desire and the wish, and recognize their duty to the soldiers who risked everything to perpetuate our institutions."

"I want to congratulate you on the great service you rendered your country. Anything the commonwealth can do for you is your right, and you should make it known. Whenever and wherever you have a need, it should be met, not in a small and niggardly way, but in the broad and generous way in which you gave your service."

Gen. Edwards, to whom Col. Edward L. Logan referred in his introduction, as the "father of the fighting men," was received with great enthusiasm. He made his remarks to the "fellow Yanks of the army and navy," and referred feelingly to the war days when his troops were worn with fatigue, and he had to use their affection for him as the incentive to the next task that duty compelled him to impose on their loyal hearts. He considered the American Legion the hope of the nation, because it was the composite voice of the men who fought, and the means of their giving concrete expression to the needs of the country.

After the addresses the guests were taken to the speedway, where an interesting program of ring exhibitions was given with the Liggett horses, including open jumping, pair jumping, battle horses, hunt teams, battle ponies, single harness horses, jumping ponies and triple bar stunts. Miss Loraine and Miss Janice Liggett daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Liggett, were among the riders. Other contestants were C. Hopewell, R. Reed, Miss Rosamond Adie, Miss Gertrude Bradley, Mrs. J. L. Sylvester, Miss H. Sanborn, C. Morris, M. F. Murphy, Ernest Olyott and Elmer J. Briggs.

The outing, which was in charge of Henry J. (Sailor) Ryan, assisted by

JUDGE DANA DEAD

Retired Superior Justice Passes Away at Summer Home in Vermont

Hon. William Franklin Dana, retired Justice of the Superior Court of this state, died early yesterday morning at his summer home at Orford, N.H., after several months of illness following a stroke of apoplexy.

Judge Dana was born in Somerville, Mass., June 26, 1863, the son of Thomas and Mary Catherine Baldwin Dana. His parents, shortly after his birth moved to Boston and in 1891 took up their residence on Centre street, Newton. Mr. Dana was educated in the Boston public schools, Hopkinson's Classical School and graduated from Harvard college in 1884, and the Harvard Law school in 1887. He was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1888. He was a member of the law firm of Dana and Bates, later of that of Choate and Dana and later still was in independent practice, until appointed to the Superior bench by Gov. Guild. Mr. Dana began his political career as a member of the Newton Common Council in 1887, a member of the board of aldermen in 1888-1889 and 1890. He served in the House of Representatives from Newton in 1901-1902 and 1903 and in the state Senate in 1904-1905 and 1906, being the president of that body in 1905 and '06. Judge Dana was a member of the Mass. Bar Association, Boston Bar Association, Middlesex Bar Association. (Continued on Page 5.)

James T. Duane of the State Welfare Committee, and Leo A. Spillane, State adjutant, American Legion. The Red Cross Motor Corps assisted in the transportation and 50 Red Cross workers of the 101st Air Depot served lunches. The first aid corps accompanied the wounded men during the day.

VISIT PLAYGROUNDS

Guests from Harvard Summer School Entertained by Playground Dept.

On Tuesday afternoon about 80 students and professors from Harvard Summer School paid a visit to the Newton Playgrounds. About 40 of these were taking the Physical Training Course. They were in charge of Mr. Geer, director of Physical Education at Harvard University.

About 40, made up of school teachers and superintendents were attending the summer course in the Department of Education. The latter came under the leadership of Professor Johnson, one of the recognized authorities on play. They visited first the magnificent new playground which has so recently been conveyed to the City by the Burr family, and which Mr. Allston Burr has gradually turned into the most picturesque and efficient playground in the United States. The visitors were fascinated by the activities and every feature of construction. A number of them took a shower bath which Mr. Hermann, himself operated. This shower bath accommodates 24 people at one time and is the newest word in shower bath construction. There were several hundred children present, in the wading pool, on the swings and teeters. A baseball game of small boys was in progress, and other games like Duck-on-the-Rock, fist ball, iron quilts were in active operation. The wading pool is a great piece of attraction. By the aid of a phonograph, which was constantly operated by a young girl, folk dancing was enjoyed. On account of the interest in fistball, two local girls, Miss Alice Randall and Miss Alice Monahan, of Burr School taught the game of fist ball to the visitors. (Continued on page 4)

PRIMARY NOMINATIONS CLOSED

Many Contests to be Settled at the State Primary on September 7th

The time for filing nominating papers for the coming State primary to be held on Tuesday, September 7, expired last Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the office of the City Clerk and at the same hour on Tuesday at the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth at the State House.

From papers which have been submitted to the Newton Registrars of Voters for certification, it is evident that there will be several contests for the Republican nominations in this city.

Hon. Channing H. Cox will be unopposed for Governor. There will be four candidates for Lieutenant Governor, with Secretary of State Albert P. Langtry and Speaker Joseph E. Warner the leaders. For Secretary to succeed Mr. Langtry, there are six candidates, City Clerk Frederic W. Cook of Somerville and Samuel W. George of Haverhill being far in the lead. State Auditor Cook is opposed by Mr. Walter Babo of Lynn and State Treasurer Burrell will have to fight for a re-nomination against Harry Brown of Acton. Mr. J. Weston Allen of this city is unopposed for Attorney General.

For member of the Governor's Council, former Senator Charles S. Smith of Lincoln is best known here of the six candidates for the place.

For state senator to succeed Hon. Thomas Weston of this city, Representative William J. Naphen of Natick probably has the best chance to win, although he is opposed by former Representatives Wilbur A. Wood of Hopkinton and Edward L. McManus of Framingham.

Representatives Bernard Early, Abbott B. Rice and J. C. Brimblecom are candidates again and Alderman Reuben Forknall, who was defeated last year, is willing to try once more.

It is interesting to note that in the lists for delegates to the state convention as well as for members of the city committee for next year, the names of women appear for the first time. Mrs. Henrietta H. Ames of West Newton and Mrs. Susan R. Keeler of Newton Highlands and Mrs. Charline M. Mitchell of Newton Centre are candidates both for delegates and for Ward committee, Mrs. Maude P. Lane of Auburndale and Mrs. Bertha Cobb of Upper Falls are candidates for delegates.

The full lists for delegates and ward committee, both Republican and Democratic are as follows:—

- Republican Delegates
- Ward 1: Reuben Forknall, Fred W. Stone, Ralph F. Barber
- Ward 2: Harry D. Cabot, Albert M. Lyon, Fred E. Mann, W. Lloyd Allen, Albert P. Carter, F. Clifton Bassett, Wm. B. Arnold
- Ward 3: Walter H. Blackler, Thomas Chalmers, Chas. E. Hatfield, Henrietta H. Ames, John A. Paine, Sinclair Weeks
- Ward 4: George M. Heathcote, Franklin T. Miller, Mrs. Maude P. Lane, Francis McGill

CARE OF DISABLED VETERANS

The following statement in regard to increased facilities for caring for the sick and wounded men who survived the great war and who are now located in hospitals throughout the State of Massachusetts, is given out by R. G. Cholmeley-Jones, Director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance:

"It is unfortunate that there should be any uneasiness whatsoever among the residents of Massachusetts regarding the Government's program for the care and treatment of its ex-service men and women who have become disabled or diseased by reason of their military or naval service. The purpose of the Government's program for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1920, and ending June 30, 1921, is to improve materially the hospitalization program for the care and treatment of these ex-service men and women. Because of the lack of beds in hospitals owned or operated by the Government it has been necessary in the past to care for the ex-service men and women in approximately 1000 hospitals scattered throughout the country. This is manifestly unsatisfactory and not to the best interests of the sick and disabled nor to the Government in exercising the proper supervision over their care and treatment. In Massachusetts alone patients are distributed in approximately seventy-eight hospitals. Since the signing of the Armistice there has been much criticism from the patients so scattered in these various institutions, including State and County Sanatoriums, and other civilian hospitals. There are not in the State of Massachusetts sufficient hospital beds to care for the disabled veterans of the World War even though they be permitted to deprive the civilian population of hospital beds which may be urgently required to meet its needs, as is apparently the case with the hospital at West Roxbury, now occupied by the United States Public Health Service, known as Hospital No. 44, the return of which has been demanded by the officials of the City of Boston. The bed capacity of this hospital is 244, and there are at the present time 164 War Risk patients being cared for there. To meet this situation the Government is making every effort to acquire by lease a property in Massachusetts to which these patients can be transferred. A property has been examined at Worcester, Mass., known as the Summer Street Department of the Worcester State Hospital, which is not in every respect ideal, but which would at least meet the emergency, for these men who are being treated at the West Roxbury Hospital for mental disorders must not be neglected. This hospital, if acquired, will take care of 450 patients. There is strenuous opposition to the acquiring of the Summer Street Department of the Worcester State Hospital property in Worcester, on the premise that it is not satisfactory. Here you have a situation where the Government is being forced to give up one hospital for the care of mental and nervous ex-service men and women, and at the same time it is being made difficult for it to secure even temporary accommodations elsewhere in the State.

"The Sundry Civil Bill for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, provides that the Bureau of War Risk Insurance for the care of its patients, in addition to the facilities of the United States Public Health Service, may make full use of the hospital facilities of the War and Navy Departments, and of the National Homes for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, the Sundry Civil Bill carrying an appropriation of $46,000,000 for the proper execution of this program. By this authority there is made available approximately 14,000 hospital beds in Government-owned or operated institutions. It is essential in the Government's program for the proper care and treatment of these sick and disabled ex-service men and women that they have proper medical supervision and the right environment. Almost 18,000 patients are now scattered in more than 1000 hospitals, when they should be concentrated, as far as possible, in larger groups.

"In commenting on the Government's program for the present fiscal year, Dr. Pattison, of the National Tuberculosis Association, states that more progress has been made since July 1, 1920, in the care and treatment of tuberculosis patients than has been made since the signing of the Armistice. A similar statement with regard to the care of the nervous and mental cases has been made by Dr. Salmon, of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene.

"In carrying out the program authorized by Congress at its last session, no stone is being left unturned in securing the counsel, advice and co-operation of the country's greatest experts on hospitalization, mental care and treatment, as well as the direct cooperation of the various national committees of the medical profession. It is important that the residents of Massachusetts shall have confidence in and cooperate with the Government's program, and it should be understood that the only purpose of the Bureau is to provide the very best facilities possible for the rehabilitation of the ex-service men and women. The present situation should not be allowed to beget the necessities of the future. There has been a rapid and continuous increase in the number of hospital patients of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance ever since its inception. From all the data now in the hands of the Government, it is evident that this increase will continue at the same rate as in the past. Prompt measures for the utilization of all the Government's hospital facilities will prevent chaotic conditions in future and will be the means of forestalling much suffering and hardship on the part of the sick and disabled discharged soldiers, sailors and marines. There are, for instance, at the present time, nearly 18,000 patients in hospitals. It is believed that this number will aggregate 30,000 by July 31, 1920, being the estimate on the rate of increase for the past year.

"The Government has no pride of opinion in this matter; quite to the contrary, it has sought the counsel, opinion and co-operation of all those individuals and organizations who are equally interested and concerned in restoring to health and economic usefulness all those who have suffered in the service of their country."

SLIPPING IT OVER

Do you make a living, or are you earning a living? Would you hire yourself?
Do you ever think that the boss may find you are not making good? Are you trying to slip it over on the boss?

These are the questions for you to answer in all candor and in all confidence.

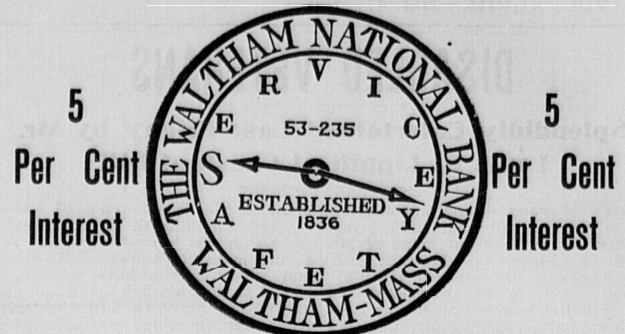

If you are fair to yourself, fair to the boss, these questions will come up in your mind and depending largely on the attitude of your mind, your individual success hinges.

You may not think so, but this is where you are slipping it over on yourself.

COMPANY C VETERANS

The first annual outing of the "Veterans of Company C" will be on Sunday, August 8th, at Nantasket Beach. According to plans of the committee, the members and their guests will leave Boston on the 10 o'clock boat, the first one in the morning. At 2 o'clock the party will gather at the Villa Napoli, where, after a short meeting, the entertainment and dinner will be put on. The date was selected because it is the nearest holiday to the anniversary of the mustering in of the company for its part in the World War.

NATION'S PRESS PRAISES COOLIDGE

Candidate Calvin Coolidge has captured the enemy. His speech of acceptance wrings from the opposition press tributes to man and deliverance it cannot withhold. Its height of criticism is reached in the reflection that the Vice-Presidential nominee has shown himself in thorough accord with his chieftain and standing squarely on the Republican platform. "Coolidge the Philosopher," the New York Times heads its critique of Governor Coolidge's exposition of the nation's issues and the worst it says of him is that he might well have headed the ticket, which is another way of admitting that the ticket is a good one, coming or going or any way one takes it. The bouquet the Times throws at Mr. Coolidge contains these flowers: "The Massachusetts Governor already had shown that he had the gift of pungent writing. He has cultivated a gnomical quality. There is about him a touch of Emerson, a flavor of Thoreau, a reminiscence of Poor Richard and even a suggestion of the New England Primer. The total impression is of homely Yankee sense given elevated utterance."

Grudgingly the New York "World" yields to the charm of Coolidge's diction and treats of his "well considered utterances."

"In Calvin Coolidge," says the Sun and New York Herald, "the Republican party now has and the nation must rejoice it soon may have, a leader of balance as well as brilliancy; a thinker of deeds as well as words—a man of substance, of directness and of strength."

The New York Tribune points out that: "Governor Coolidge richly deserved the honor which his party has given him. It is to know that, thanks to the spirit of co-operation in which Senator Harding conceives his Presidential duty, the clear mind and practical skill of Governor Coolidge will have full weight in the next Administration if the Republican policy prevails."

Strong reinforcement of Senator Harding in his interpretation of the various planks of the party's platform are seen in Governor Coolidge's speech by the Washington Post (Ind.). Further it says: "All other issues and questions would seem to be embraced in the return to the people of their government and their property for practically all legislation during the war emergency was designed to place an autocracy over both. Governor Coolidge emphasizes the fact that either the people must own the government or the government will own the people, and he adds that there can be no political independence without economic independence."

The Washington Herald (Progressive Republican) has this to say about the Coolidge remedy for our ills: "As soon as possible, he argues, all the reactions of the war are to be done away with. That is our greatest need. Our national reputation is to be rehabilitated. We are to be co-partners with other nations in restoring peace, and by some definite agreement, but always with reservations guarding American independence and rights."

That the nomination of Governor Coolidge was justified by his speech of acceptance is the opinion of the Washington Evening Star, which declares it a well phrased deliverance taking into clear and frank account the issues of the campaign.

DEATH OF MRS. BURRAGE

Mrs. Lydia L. Burrage, who died at her home at Chestnut Hill on Saturday, was the widow of Charles Henry Burrage, a former Boston merchant, who was engaged in the wool business. Mrs. Burrage, who was in her eighty-third year, had been an invalid for the past ten or eleven years, due to paralysis, but in her own home she always continued to welcome many of her personal friends.

She was born in Philadelphia and was, before her marriage, Miss Lydia Love, daughter of William Henry Love and Rachael (Evans) Love, who were Quakers. She lived in Philadelphia until her marriage to Mr. Burrage with whom she came to Boston to reside. Her husband died about seven years ago. He traced his ancestry back to the John Burrage who settled in Charlestown in 1630, soon after that place was settled by the Sprague brothers from England. Mrs. Burrage was a member of the First Parish Church at Chestnut Hill, and was interested in its work. She is survived by two daughters, Miss Margaret C. Burrage and Miss Elsie A. Burrage, with whom she has made her home at Chestnut Hill, and by a son, Paul Burrage, of Cambridge. Simple services were held Tuesday forenoon at her home at Chestnut Hill and were attended by many family friends. The officiating minister was Rev. Addison Moore, D. D., of the First Parish Church at Chestnut Hill. The burial was at Forest Hills Cemetery.

NEWTON 25 YEARS AGO

From the Newton Graphic of Aug. 9, 1895

City government authorizes widening of Washington street to 75 feet from Germantown street, West Newton to Hall street, Newton, with estimated land damages of $388,000. At Hall street, the street will be but 60 feet. "Here it is proposed that the electric car tracks shall make a circuit of the bank, avoiding a double rail on each of the narrow streets." (What a pity this plan was not carried out. Ed.)

Arthur W. Porter wins the five-mile open, and was second in the quarter mile, and mile events at the bicycle races at Manhattan Beach. Work begun on Newton Associates Block, corner Walnut and Austin streets, Newtonville. "It is reported on pretty good authority that the Boston and Albany railroad will inaugurate the electric system on the circuit."

Street railway service begun between West Newton and Wellesley.

GARDEN NEWS

The frequent near cloud bursts of the last few days have done a lot of damage in the local home gardens. Questions are coming to the County Horticultural Agent, whether or not a continuation of this is to be expected. No one can, of course, answer this question. It is always good garden practice to attempt to decrease the amount of damage done to the minimum. This is done by insurance. Insurance is in the nature of a cover crop, placed upon the soil as soon as crops are removed, or between the rows when the crops in the rows are not expected to cover up all the space. Among the better cover crops are the legumes, which means those plants which gather nitrogen from the air through their foliage and add to the soil through modities upon the roots. Clover is one of the more common legumes. Alfalfa vetch and alfalfa are used extensively by farmers. Timothy grass seed is also used extensively especially in the Connecticut Valley by the Tobacco Growers. These crops are not only improvers of the soil, but when spaded or plowed under another spring will very materially increase the value of the garden soil for products because of the large amount of humus added.

Crops to Plant

The season is advancing fast and there are only a few crops left which may be safely planted; late cabbage plants may be set, turnips and spinach seed may be planted. Turnips are not as a rule included in home gardens because of the prevalence of root maggots. Unless you know from past experience that they are not likely to be troublesome it is much wiser not to put in turnips.

Tomato Plant

The trimming and pruning of the tomato plants should be continued for sometime yet. This, as already suggested, means nothing but cutting out the laterals which start at the axils of the leaves at the main stem. Most home gardeners train their tomatoes to one or two stems. These, of course, must be tied to the stick or trellis upon which they are supposed to climb. Those home gardeners who are permitting the tomatoes to grow upon the ground would do well to save the lawn clippings or other humus material and place this under the vines upon the soil. This covering will prevent the fruit from getting dirty, keeping it dry and thus making conditions less favorable for development of blight and will act as a blanket upon the soil.

Do Not Hill Potatoes

The writer within a few days had the privilege of looking over the large home garden plots in Framingham. He found the practice which is so prevalent among people from foreign countries of hilling their potatoes to be very popular in this section. Doubtless other towns are as bad as Framingham. In this county, except on very heavy land, it has been found repeatedly to be very poor practice to hill potatoes. This is because hilling increases the area of the surface exposed to the air, heat from the sun and wind to dry the soil in a greater distance than it would if the soil was level or nearly level. Most potato planters try to get their seed in deeply and then not hill appreciably.

Spray Material

Do not forget that when you use the commercial products upon the market containing Bordeaux mixtures, it is desirable to use them at least three times as strong as the manufacturers recommend.

In order to acquaint the public with the general telephone situation, and some of the reasons for delay in completing new installations—chief among which is the difficulty of getting the numerous kinds of necessary material—we have prepared a series of announcements of which this is the first.

The General Telephone Situation

The reason orders for new telephone service cannot be completed as promptly as in the past, and that some orders are delayed weeks or even months, is that we are trying to meet an abnormal demand for service with a sub-normal supply of the materials necessary to give service.

It is not unnatural for persons moving into a house which formerly had telephone service to assume that, because of that fact, service to them is readily possible. For this mistaken assumption we ourselves are chiefly responsible, because we used to talk about "renting" a telephone, and even bill subscribers for "monthly rental." Consequently the mind of the average subscriber is still focussed on the telephone instrument as the controlling factor of telephone service.

While the telephone instrument is indispensable, it is only one of more than a hundred essential parts of telephone equipment. Lacking any of these parts, a telephone switchboard would be as ineffective as an automobile without its carburetor.

Some of these parts are made by ourselves; others by dozens of specialty manufacturers in various parts of the country. We could increase production if we could get the raw material and the transportation. But with labor troubles in the wire-drawing mills came a shortage of the copper wire necessary for cable and switchboards. Scarcity of paper caused almost a famine of the special kind of paper necessary for the insulation of these copper wires in the cables. And then came freight embargoes, following railroad labor troubles, so that for three weeks this summer one of the largest cable manufacturing plants in the country had to shut down because it could neither get the necessary raw material into its plant nor the much wanted finished product out of its plant and on its way to us.

The desire of waiting customers for telephone service is not more keen than our desire to serve them at once. We want them to feel that we are earnestly trying to do this as rapidly and as fairly as possible.

EDITORIAL

There is one ray of sunlight in the gathering clouds of an increased tax rate, in that the amount of the income tax is so large that the city will apparently lose nothing this year on account of the recent change in the method of distributing that tax. The estimated amount for this year being some $340,000 as against $338,000 last year. If the method had not been changed Newton would have received nearly 20 percent more.

The proposed increase in communication railroad rates in this city means about $13 a year increase to every commuter for passenger service to say nothing of what we will have to pay on account of increased charges for freight. We shall all have to be Ponzi at this rate.

If you are really interested in the success of Harding and Coolidge just send your check to any member of the Republican Finance committee for Newton whose names are printed in another column.

"Law, Loyalty and Liberty" the slogan suggested by Speaker Joseph E. Warner is particularly appropriate to Massachusetts and to Governor Coolidge.

LIEUT. HAY BURIED

Funeral services for the late Lieut. Edward H. Hay, U. S. N., retired, were held last Friday afternoon from his late residence on Brookside avenue, Newtonville. Rev. William Ayers of the Wollaston Congregational Church officiated and Mrs. A. L. Wakefield sang "Abide with Me" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Lieut. Hay was especially fond of the hymn "Abide with Me" as it was played every night by the band on board his ship while on service in Japan. The interment was at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy, where officers of the Navy took part in the committal service.

Lieutenant Hay died on Wednesday of last week at his home at 77 Brookside avenue, Newtonville, following illness which began four years or more ago and which caused him to be confined in the Naval Hospital in Washington, and later in that at Chelsea, while for the past two years and a half he had been ill at his home in Newtonville. He was retired from naval service at the age limit of sixty-two years.

Lieutenant Hay was born in Charlestown and would have been seventy-three years of age next November. He was the son of Henry Thomas Hay and was brought up in Charlestown, where he attended school. As a young man he entered the Naval service and in his career had been on various ships and had visited many parts of the world, including China, Japan, India and European countries. One part of his service was a stay of two and a half years in Honolulu, superintending the building there of the Government's coaling stations. Lieutenant Hay's last active service was at the Fore River Shipyards in Quincy, where he was a Government inspector of vessels. He married Miss Lena Perry of Waterville, Me., by whom he is survived. There are no children.

"A STATEMENT TO THE COUNTRY"

Maintaining that the prodigious and fast increasing number of millions of Americans who are not even nominally affiliated with churches presents a crisis, not of churches, not of creeds, but of morals and character and freedom. 8,000 laymen of the Unitarian Church have combined in "A Statement to the Country," in which they say: "No man of insight can look at a fact like this and not understand that a historic change, grievous in its injury and perhaps ominous of disaster is befalling this heir and hope of the ages, the United States of our Republic."

To meet this crisis, the laymen contend, there is absolutely nothing more than spiritual insight, moral discipline, an understanding of liberty and a recognition of the supreme righteousness by which men and nations nobly live.

Recent and authoritative surveys reveal the unsuspected and alarming fact that the unchurched are now in a considerable majority in the United States. The Unitarian laymen address themselves impartially to both groups, to those who are affiliated with the church as well as to those who are not. From the statement that "the proselyting busybody is abhorrent to our spirit and unknown to our tradition," plus the repetition that "we would disturb no man's sincere convictions, nor disparage the work which any church is doing," these laymen say:

"We earnestly hope that our fellow citizens who believe in the historic creeds and desire them will enter the churches that teach them. We wish these churches well. They are indispensable in maintaining the great tradition, and in meeting present needs. But you, fellow Americans, who cannot enter by the gateway of a creed, yet who are distressed by your churchlessness, and are aware of the necessity of religion in the face of our threatened spiritual danger and desolation, you and your children we invite and welcome to Unitarian Christianity—a church that, whatever its faults, is liberal and simple, kindred to the spirit of Jesus, and one with the spirit of America."

In the Unitarian mind this invitation shapes itself in the form of an obligation to the future, a simple question of fair play. "Are we doing for the rising generation?" Unitarians ask, "what our parents, in their time, did for us when we were the rising generation?" They recognize also an obligation to the past, "to the whole spiritual program of Christian faith and enterprise which was inaugurated three hundred years ago by our ancestors," and so, "we find that there emerges upon our vision a great truth, a truth which older nations have learned before us, but which we in America are just beginning to perceive."

"There is such a thing as the continuity of a nation's history. We in this generation are only one link in the continuous chain of America's development; and the strength of the whole chain is only the strength of its separate links. It is our task to see that the chain does not snap at our link; that the ideals of faith and freedom for which our ancestors labored and suffered do not perish through our neglect and indifference; that the torch they have passed to us does not become in our hands a blackened and smoldering stump. This is a great and holy task. We can do it."

How they propose to do it is by spreading among Americans everywhere the faith that is in themselves. These 8,000 laymen have taken the initiative in the creation of a great religious and educational program. They seek to revive the religious enthusiasm of the Puritans and to unify in a powerful working force those who follow the trail blazed by those pioneers. And they aim to spread among the 60,000,000 or more unchurched Americans a knowledge of Unitarian principles, which are generally stated as belief in:

"The Fatherhood of God, the Brotherhood of Man, the Leadership of Jesus, Salvation by Character, and the Progress of Mankind onward and upward forever."

students from Harvard. After that they organized two teams among the visitors and practiced the game with them. The visitors were impressed with the fact that these young girls were able to teach the game and lead in it.

In connection with the Health work which is now going on the Newton Playground, Mrs. Williams was giving a course in Mother Craft work to the young girls.

After the visit to the Burr Playground the visitors were taken on city machines, trucks, etc., on a trip to other playgrounds. They visited Boyd, Stearns, West Newton and Newton Highlands Playgrounds where there were large crowds of children happy at play. They concluded their visit with an hour's stay at the large Newton Centre Playground. Besides games already mentioned they witnessed the demonstration of dramatic stories by children, also inspected a fine collection of occupation work and had a demonstration of flat ball on a specially constructed court at Newton Centre. The handwork was particularly commented upon by those interested in constructive play. The supervisor of Occupation Work, Miss Vile I. Cozens, was on hand to explain our system. The dramatic stories at Newton Centre and the pageant which was staged for the visitors' benefit was in charge of Miss Harriet M. Bell, who is supervisor of dramatic play and pageantry on the playgrounds. This summer Miss Bell is developing a Health Pageant, and an historical pageant for the Burr Playground.

The visitors are citizens of a great many states in the Union. Some of them were from the western coast. On leaving they expressed their great appreciation of the wonderful playgrounds the City of Newton maintains, and expressed the hope that they might be able to develop similar systems in their own homes.

93 YEARS OLD

Mrs. Louise Pray, who had the distinction of being the first customer of the late Eben Jordan when he, as a young man, opened his first little store in Hanover street, many years ago, was 93 years old on Tuesday, and in honor of her birthday anniversary a celebration was held at the John Andrew Home in Newtonville, where live Civil War veterans and their wives. Mrs. Pray is the widow of Captain William Pray, who fought in the Civil War with the Twenty-ninth Massachusetts Volunteers. He died more than twenty-five years ago.

Mrs. Pray is in excellent general health for a woman of her years and she seems to be much younger than the age which she acknowledges. She had a little fall, about two weeks ago, the effects of which she still feels and her sight has been slightly impaired, other than which she is physically remarkable, as she is mentally. She was born in Philadelphia, but as a child was brought by her parents to Boston and their home was in Federal street, next to the old Federal Street Theatre.

Mrs. Pray vividly recalls the incident when she went as a child of 13 to Mr. Jordan's store where she bought a yard of pink ribbon which, in the window, had attracted her attention. She remembers that her parents told her she must call the proprietor of the little shop "Mr. Jordan," which seemed to her young mind strange, as he was only seventeen years of age. At a recent celebration at the present big store of Jordan Marsh Company, Mrs. Pray was the guest of honor at a banquet.

Her anniversary brought her numerous postal cards and other greetings, and also various little gifts, as well as flowers. The matron of the home, Mrs. Mary Hicks, arranged a special dinner in honor of the day and her daughter personally made two birthday cakes to mark the event. Mrs. Lue Stuart Wadsworth, president of the home, was present to help make the occasion successful and a daughter of Mrs. Pray, Mrs. Mary Pray Stevens of Lynnfield Centre, who is threescore years and ten, was among the day's guests. Mrs. Wallace Williams did much toward the success of the celebration in honor of Mrs. Pray, who has lived at the home in Newtonville only a few weeks. Previously she lived for many years in Brooks street, East Boston. In the past twelve years, Mrs. Pray has made fifty patchwork quilts. She is a Unitarian in her church affiliations.

ADDING INJURY TO INSULT

Because postmen have scrupulously kept out of politics in the past the Government pays them about half what they earn.

When they and their friends point out that their wages are pitifully inadequate to their ability, and equally inadequate to their needs, they are given an advance of a few dollars a year.

And now, when a Presidential campaign is on, they are sternly forbidden to take any part in politics whatever.

No more arrogant, no more un-American order than this has ever been issued by a department official.

Postmen, like Cabinet officers, are citizens, and presumably have the right of citizens to vote according to their own interests.

The Postmaster - General, from whose office this impudent order was issued, is the busiest politician in the Cabinet.

He has just returned from San Francisco, where he worked eighteen hours a day in the interests of a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency. His candidate, incidentally, was defeated.

He has been, since his incumbency of his office, in politics constantly, and unless he experiences an amazing change of heart he will be in politics through the entire campaign.

Yet this gentleman, who is as much an employee of the Post Office Department as any letter carrier, brazenly forbids any man under him to engage in politics. And every letter carrier knows that a violation of this order is extremely likely to cost him his job.

Of course, if the policy of the administration and of Congress toward the postmen is continued, most of them will quit their places anyway, so the order is not as much of a hardship as it looks.

It is nevertheless an unwarranted meddling with the rights of a citizen, who, unable to get justice from one administration, naturally desires to do all he can to put a more efficient administration in office.

We do not know to what extent it will be obeyed. But that is beside the point. The order itself is the sort of order that might well be issued by an absolute monarchy, but which should not be tolerated in a republic. If postmen in the past had been as active in politics as Cabinet officers, they would not now need to ask outside help to get them living wages from the Government.

DEATH OF MR. WHEELER

Mr. Henry A. Wheeler died Wednesday morning at the Newton Hospital, following an operation which he underwent for appendicitis, with which he was stricken about a week ago. His home was at 289 Mill street, Newtonville. He had been a resident of Newton for thirty years.

Mr. Wheeler, who was sixty-seven years of age, was born in Pigeon Cove, on Cape Ann, and was the son of Charles Wheeler and Elizabeth (Dennison) Wheeler. He began his business career as a salesman in a Boston book store, which he left to enter the awning, tent and flag business, with which, since 1880, he had been actively connected. He and his brothers, Charles and Irving Wheeler, established the business which is still conducted in Commercial street.

A deep fondness for orchids which Mr. Wheeler possessed, caused him to make careful study of these plants and his research work proved an incentive for him to take up the cultivation of orchids in a business way. He was head of the firm of Wheeler & Co., who conduct greenhouses in the Waban section of Newton, for the cultivation of various varieties of orchids. Mr. Wheeler was a member of the Newton Club. On May 8, 1890, he married Miss Rebecca Dresser of Cambridge, daughter of the late Edward Dresser. He is survived by her and by a daughter, Mrs. Guy E. Wyatt (Margaret Wheeler) of Brookline, and a son, Roger Wheeler of Newtonville.

THE COPLEY THEATRE

The opening of his fifth consecutive season at the Copley Theatre is announced by Henry Jewett to begin next Thursday evening, August 12th, with the first performance in this country of "Lazy Lubin," a fantastic comedy by Kibbe Howard, the well known English playwright. The opening play is a piece in which humor and sentiment are cleverly mingled, and its scene is Lubin Manifold's chambers in London. He is a middle-aged man of quiet manners and indolent nature, and twenty years after an unhappy love affair, a pretty little French girl comes into his life. One romantic situation follows another during the action of the play, other characters add to its entertaining qualities, and the brilliant dialogue has a lightness and sparkle that increases the interest in the plot and that keeps the audience eagerly alert until the final fall of the curtain on the last act.

POLITICAL NOTES

Former U. S. Senator John W. Weeks is chairman of the recently organized Massachusetts Republican Finance committee and Messrs. Louis K. Liggett, George S. Smith and Frank W. Stearns of this city are members of the Advisory committee. The city of Newton committee which has been appointed by the larger committee consists of Senator Weeks as chairman, Donald D. McKay of Newton Highlands as secretary and Frank L. Richardson as treasurer, with the following district chairmen, ward 1, Charles E. Riley, Reuben Fornkall, ward 2, Fred E. Mann, ward 3, Chas. E. Hatfield, Henry J. Nichols, Herbert M. Cole, ward 4, Guy M. Winslow, Harold P. Young, ward 5, Seward W. Jones, Frank L. Richardson, Thos. J. Sullivan, ward 6, Louis K. Liggett, George S. Smith, ward 7, Joseph B. Jamieson, Oliver M. Fisher. Representative Bernard Early has been appointed a member of the Republican Legislative Committee by Speaker Warner.

REGISTRATION OF WOMEN

To complete the ratification of the Suffrage Amendment to the Federal Constitution enfranchising the women of the United States, the favorable action of but a single additional State Legislature is now needed. Such action may take place at any moment, and it will then be not only the right and privilege of every woman of voting age, but also her supreme civic duty to use her newly won franchise by voting in the forthcoming presidential election, which involves national interests of supreme importance.

But as a necessary preliminary to voting, the law requires ALL voters to register and have their names recorded on the voting list of the district in which they live. Therefore, every woman should feel in duty bound to inform herself of the details of registration.

The Legislature has provided for the transfer of the names of women registered for School Committee to the regular voting list upon final ratification of the Federal Suffrage Amendment.

There are probably a million women in Massachusetts who are eligible to vote, and the task of handling their registration will be an enormous one. Many of them do not seem to understand the necessity of their registering, and many will probably delay too long and thus disfranchise themselves for the time being. All Republicans and Democrats alike, should be brought to see the necessity of their availing themselves of the opportunity of registering before the Primaries. They should understand that in many of the cities and towns of the State the Registrars have already opened registration, that registration is now going on. It is hoped that it will be opened in all towns as soon as possible in order to anticipate the rush which will come as we approach the November election.

YESTERDAY

Life shows us a book of yesterdays. And our eyes are dim with tears. As we glance backward o'er its pages That are fading with the years.

Events that once seemed so important Are mere outlines of the past; And the smaller ones at this distance, Are the ones that Time outlast.

These are remembered up in Heaven, Up where God's loved ones abide. Where many friends of the yesterdays, Passed so quickly to His side.

Memories sweet and memories sad, Are mingled all together, Friends that have stood the tests of the years, Some, only pleasant weather.

So our lives are full of yesterdays, The present will soon be past. Fill each day with deeds that will endure, Each more worthy to the last.

And when past, present, and future meet And are all complete in one, May we hear "Our Father's" welcome voice, Pronounce the glad words, "well done."

—S. Evelyn Thompson.

DEMONSTRATION OF VOTING

The Women's Division of the Republican State Committee invites the Republican women of the Commonwealth to a registration rally and a demonstration of how to vote.

The meeting will be held under the direction of the American Citizenship Committee of which Mrs. Frederick P. Bagley is chairman, Pilgrim Hall, 14 Beacon street, Thursday, August 12th. Morning session at 10:30; afternoon session at 2 o'clock.

The purpose of the meeting is to prepare the new voters for the procedure of the fall election. The meeting will take the form of a practical demonstration where candidates for election will make campaign speeches. The morning session will take the form of a political rally in which the speakers will assume the roles of candidates for election.

In the afternoon there will be a practical demonstration of the manner of voting and an address on the Republican Campaign of 1920.

Y. M. C. A. BASEBALL

The team lost to Lexington K. of C. last Saturday on Lexington's field 7-6. Newton got wild with the ball in a couple of frames and threw the game away. Of Lexington's seven runs, one was earned, the rest being made on errors. In the final inning Newton started a batting rally, but a close decision at first knocked their chances of tying up the score.

On Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock the fast Rugby A. A. of Mattapan will be the attraction. They have a very strong battery in Madden and Fredey. This team comes to the "Y" field with a great record and the "Y" team will have to hustle to put the game away. Madden, by the way, is the lad that shut out the fast Marblehead team a couple of weeks ago, allowing only five scattered hits.

On Thursday evening at 6:30 it is planned to have the heavy hitting Watertown K. of C. on the "Y" field. Definite announcement will be made later.

Pick-Ups At Lexington

"Lefty" Earle with the scorebook played the best game for Newton. In the sixth Pitcher Lane lost the location of Bill's, on first and twice threw the ball away, allowing runs to come in.

Barnes relieved Lane in the sixth and pitched a steady game.

Haynes had a hard-luck day at bat, also Louis Bills.

Newell caught a fine game, besides donating two good hits and one long sacrifice fly, allowing Varley to score. Varley, by the way, had a chance to show his speed on the bases in the ninth.

Brimblecom dumped a nice single back of third, which helped some.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Kenneth Perry, 16, son of Alexander Perry of Crafts street, Newton, was arrested late last night in front of the Newton Catholic Club on Washington street, West Newton, on a charge of intoxication after Perry had driven the automobile owned by his father into the rear of the car owned by Amos Oldfield of 202 Auburndale avenue, West Newton.

The Oldfield car was among a number of cars standing before the clubhouse, where a garden party was in progress. Mr. Oldfield was sitting in his auto, which was pushed along the street for a distance of 50 feet as the result of the impact. After hitting the Oldfield car, Perry glanced off and ran into the car owned by Arthur J. Morrill of Washington street, West Newton, that was parked at the curb.

With Perry were three men, one of whom, Frederick Temple of Watertown, was thrown out by the collision and so seriously injured that he was taken to the Newton Hospital in the police ambulance after first aid had been given him by Rev. William J. Farrell, formerly a chaplain of the 26th Division, who was at the lawn party. The other two men ran away.

The car driven by Perry was badly wrecked and the other cars, while damaged, were not totally out of commission. Perry was taken to the police station, but as he is a juvenile, he was released, after he had sobered up, according to the police. All the men in the Perry car had been drinking, the police say.

DEATH OF REV. DR. DUTTON

Rev. Horace Dutton, a resident of Auburndale for about 40 years, who died Wednesday in Boston, was in his eighty-first year. He was born in Boston in 1840 and was a graduate of the Boston Latin School, as he was of Yale, in the class of 1862, and of the Andover Theological Seminary. His last pastorate was in the Congregational Church at Northboro.

After he retired from the ministry in 1879, he devoted most of his time to philanthropic work and spent a number of years in Europe.

He was twice married, first to Martha Gilbert Sweet, who died in 1872. His second wife was Frances Newell Bird, who died in 1901. She was the daughter of Frank W. Bird of East Walpole.

Mr. Dutton is survived by a brother, E. P. Dutton, of New York, the well known publisher; a sister, Dr. Julia M. Dutton of West Newton, and by three children, Martha S. Dutton, Francis Bird Dutton, now in Brazil, and George D. Dutton.

NAVY LIBRARY WORTH VISIT

Apartment in States, War and Navy Building at Washington Should Appeal to Tourists.

The navy library, in the state, war and navy building, is a lovely place to soak up atmosphere. Like the building itself, it is thirty-three years old. When it was built England, France, Spain and Italy presented the marbles of porphyry, sienna and malachite with which the walls are paneled. Mexico sent the pieces of onyx which encrust the gallery. The round stone over the door came from the ruins of Pompeii. The connoisseur in marble who visits Washington will enjoy a call here.

In the center of the large room, lined with shelves of weighty tomes on naval matters, there is a large and important green-topped table. Around this table sat the strategic board of the Spanish-American war. Here also the naval advisory board for the great war made their secret plans and experiments. Edison, Maxim, Miller and many others conferred over it, with the windows carefully darkened and a guard before the door.

There is a quaint side to the library, too. A little white-haired lady can be seen any time, flitting about the shelves of dark, heavy books, or cutting and pasting busily in her corner by the window. This is Miss Mason, daughter of a former secretary of the navy. She has been in the library 26 years. If you happen in near noon she may give you a cup of tea on one corner of her desk.

And of all charming places to have an unexpected cup of tea, with a sweet little lady, this quiet nook among the books is recommended.

TWO TRAVELERS CAME BACK

According to Army Captain, Mules Returned From That Dismal and Undiscovered Shore.

The regimental morning report is a fearsome document. On it appear all the changes in status of men and animals for each preceding 24 hours. It happened in an Ohio regiment once that two mules fell ill one night. The veterinarian gave his verdict of hopelessness, and the captain of the supply company accordingly made the proper entry on the morning report: "Two mules, from duty to dead."

But under the care of the grizzled old stable sergeant the mules recovered and next morning the captain found them alive and kicking. Now, entries made on the morning report can never be erased, which made the situation embarrassing for the captain. However, he was a man of resource, and the next day's report carried the startling entry: "Two mules, from dead to duty."

Shrub May Prove Valuable.

Two years before the war, as the story is told, two German chemists applied for permission to experiment with the plant life on a great semi-arid ranch in central Mexico. Their request was granted, with the understanding that they furnish a complete report of their findings. The two chemists worked feverishly, and chiefly on a squat, odorless shrub called "gobernadora," long reputed to possess medicinal properties. Suddenly they disappeared; what they had discovered was never known. Now, after experiments with this same desert shrub which they have found in drier parts of New Mexico, chemists of the United States department of agriculture believe that they have discovered another alkaloid to add to the list which already includes morphine, quinine and cocaine. Its chemical and pharmaceutical properties are now under investigation.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Trapper's Tomb a Log Cabin.

A humble log cabin which stands in a trackless forest near Lake Athabasca, in western Canada, was once the home of a fur trapper, its builder. Now it is a tomb, sheltering the frozen body of its former occupant, who died there, alone and unaided, nearly two years ago. To investigate the cause of the trapper's death, a fearless member of the royal northwest mounted police journeyed to the desolate scene in midwinter, braving the terrors of the wilderness for months before reaching his objective, situated miles from railroads and civilization. The corpse was in a perfect state of preservation, due to the cold, dry air, and was not moved from the bunk on which the trapper passed away.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Last Resort.

An eminent engineer said in our hearing yesterday that in Italy the workers are giving two hours of their time as a free gift to the state. They realize that increased production means ultimately increased wealth. In Germany there are signs of the same spirit among the colliers. But in old England the following story admirably illustrates the industrial situation: Two miners were discussing the minimum wage. "Say, Bill," said the first, "what's this 'ere minimum wage?" Bill spat. "The minimum wage! That's what we gets for goin' down; an' if we wants ter make any more brass, we goes and does some work for it."—London Morning Post.

City Markets.

Of 227 cities in the United States having estimated populations of more than 30,000, more than one-half (128) had municipal markets in 1918 according to a bulletin on the subject recently issued by the census bureau.

SUMMER SCHOOL CLOSED

Hundreds of children will benefit in health through the teachings in the Health Course which was an important feature of the Stearns Summer School, which closed its season last Friday.

The success of this feature of the school was made largely possible by the co-operation of the Newton Welfare Bureau.

In the Health course, mothers were taught the value of diet, proper methods of bathing babies, etc., for the children were inspected, weighed and measured periodically.

At the beginning of the season Miss Mabel C. Bragg, assistant superintendent of schools, secured the services of Miss Mary Higgins, a special health teacher, who gave the children health talks and health songs and also directed a health play, which attracted much interest. Much importance is attached to the use of a tag which the children were given, headed "Watch Your Weight" and on which was placed the name, age, height and weight when they entered the class. By this plan the children could keep track of their own improvement.

At the Summer School, they were also instructed in sewing, cooking, woodcarving, folk dancing and have made such articles as checkerboards, rugs, paper dolls, marbles, beads, Japanese lanterns, etc.

There was also an intensive work department made up of Grades 4, 5, 6 and 7 from all parts of Newton. In all there were about 400 pupils enrolled with a corps of 20 teachers under the direction of Mr. William A. Leighton, principal of the Burr School at Auburndale.

Follow-up work, under the auspices of the Newton Welfare Bureau and Dr. Bowers started in July, the names being taken from the Stearns School list, and included a Nutrition class beginning with six pupils and now numbering 13. There was also a Baby clinic held every Wednesday, with a public health nurse in attendance. Twenty-seven babies were brought to the clinic last Wednesday.

THE NEWTON HOSPITAL

A Recent Patient Pays Wholehearted Tribute to Cheerful Spirit of this Institution

Auburndale, August 5, 1920.
Editor, Newton Graphic:
Having seen posters about town asking aid for and appreciation of the work of the Newton Hospital I wish hereby to show at least my "ounce of loyalty," even if I can do very little for its material benefit.

No one with any real human sympathy who really knows the Newton Hospital could really be indifferent or lacking in loyalty. So the problem is to make everybody in Newton become aware of its work and what it means in our community life. To that end I am going to give you something out of my own experience—a few glimpses of hospital life from within.

Last winter I underwent an operation at the Newton Hospital, spending nearly three weeks in "Thayer Ward." Never having been a patient in a hospital before, I thought of it as an institution of rigid discipline where, however efficient the care might be, I should become an impersonal "case" and be put through a machine-like routine. I looked forward with dread to seeing (as I supposed I should) the surgeon in grim attire and his solemn-faced assistants with knives and all the equipment for such business.

I was pleasantly disappointed. It is hard for me now even to realize that I had an operation, or was ever in an operating room. Only a rather jovial ride to the etherizing room, where I was received with pleasant courtesy, and comfortably put to sleep. As far as possible every suggestion of anything out of the ordinary was hidden from me. In a second, as it seemed to me, (several hours later) I woke up all tucked away in the southwest corner where shines the sun all day, and for some time after that I almost thought I had gone back to childhood, so extremely careful of me were they.

From the moment I first entered the office on arriving until I went home a cheerful, kindly spirit seemed to radiate from everyone—from Miss Riddle, the superintendent, the doctors and from everybody all down the line. "Make yourself at home, doctor and nurse said to me; and they seemed to mean just what they said. They "smiled from within out." Their courtesy seemed not a cover but the natural expression of the inner life. So, here is shown good judgment in the selection of the nursing personnel,—young women who seem to like their work and who give the impression of wholesomeness. While I was there I did not hear an impatient word from anyone, but everybody kept serene; and showed no evidence that they ever had troubles of their own. This spirit not only makes for happy conditions in the wards, but it teaches a valuable lesson to the patients. I heard no word of preaching there, and I was very glad I did not, but I lived under the "Gospel of Service;" and I am sure I was more influenced by it than I am by the Gospel of words preached elsewhere. I felt when I went out that I had become a better man than when I went in. I think my experience was not exceptional. Is it not of the greatest importance—the betterment of the soul with the mending of the body—not by talking but through the deeply human friendliness of the service? Knowledge, skill, common sense and sympathy—these are qualities in which Newton Hospital is rich!

I find that those who have been patients there generally agree with me. Of course some criticize but I feel sure that the criticisms show no essential fault. Some people expect the impossible. Just think what one gets in the surgical ward of the Newton Hospital—an operation by an expert, good nursing, good food and plenty of it, in beautiful surroundings with all possible comfort at a cost of a room alone in a second class hotel. This is made possible only by the generous cooperation of many. Live

HEALTH PAGEANT

Unique Entertainment to be Given at the Various City Playgrounds

An interesting event of the week was the first performance yesterday afternoon at the Stearns Playground, Nonantum, of a Health Pageant, given under the auspices of the Playground Department, assisted by the Newton Welfare Bureau. The object of the pageant is to bring home to the children especially the various factors which enter into healthful living conditions.

At the performance yesterday afternoon the arrival of the Queen of the pageant was heralded by a group of fairies attired in tissue paper costumes who gave a short dance. The queen, on her arrival, took a seat on the throne and then the various representatives of health functions, after being announced by the messengers, came before her one by one, made an obsequious and related what he or she had done towards carrying out the duties assigned to them.

Some of the functions were accompanied by clever illustrations of what they represented, such as dancing, posturing, exercising, etc. At the conclusion of the reception the whole party gathered about the queen and marched off the playground singing.

The pageant will be repeated this afternoon on the Eden Avenue Playground, West Newton, this afternoon, on the Burr Playground, at Newton, on Monday afternoon, at the Field Day of the Newton Centre, Newton Highlands and Thompsonville Playground children at Newton Centre on Wednesday afternoon, at the Upper Falls Playground, probably on Thursday afternoon and at the Lower Falls Playground on Friday afternoon.

The following children took part in the Health Pageant:

TAX RATE IS $27.20

Big Increase in Rate, Notwithstanding a Large Advance in Real and Personal Valuations

The Board of Assessors through its chairman, Henry Bally, announced yesterday morning that the tax rate for 1920 is $27.20 per $1000, an increase of $7.40 over that of last year, $19.80.

The increase is largely due to the additional cost of running the city, the budget of 1920 totalling $2,593,142.09, as against $1,952,945.41 in 1919. There is also a large increase in the state tax amounting to over $45,000 and miscellaneous small increases all along the line. The total warrant for 1920 is $3,089,380.94, as compared with $2,268,023.46 last year. There is a slight increase in the estimated receipts of the year of about $21,000, so that the net warrant of 1920 is $2,344,202.38, as compared with one of $1,556,980.72 last year.

On the other hand the Assessors report the largest increase in valuations in the history of the city, there being $6,635,000 increase in real estate and $1,105,990 in personal, a total increase of $7,740,990.

The largest increase heretofore in valuations being last year, when the increase was about three and a half millions. The total figures this year are $74,768,400 in real estate and $11,607,980 in personal, as compared with $68,133,400 in real and $10,501,990 in personal in 1919. If this large increase in valuations had not been found by the Assessors the tax rate would have been much higher.

Some idea of how the new law distributing the income tax receipts affects this city can be gleaned from the following figures: In 1917 Newton received about $425,000 from this source, in 1918, it amounted to $454,466.88, last year we received some $383,000 from the tax plus about $49,000 from the educational fund, a total of $433,000, while this year, the first under the new law, the city can only estimate $340,610.95 from this tax. The injustice of this law as it affects Newton can be seen from these figures, which taken into consideration with the estimate of a well known tax authority that the residents of Newton will pay about $965,000 into the state treasury in income taxes, of which the city will only receive less than 50 per cent. No wonder our tax rate jumps 30 per cent.

The following figures show how the tax rate is made up:

City warrant	$2,593,142.09
State warrant	213,080.00
Soldiers' bonus	10,045.20
County warrant	93,362.49
Metropolitan expenses	148,396.15
Miscellaneous expenses	31,355.01
	$3,089,380.94

The receipts are:

Income tax	$340,610.95
Miscellaneous	372,021.99
Metropolitan Water	6,557.62
Pool taxes	25,988.00
	$745,178.56

Net warrant ..... $2,344,202.38

Total valuation ..... $6,635,000

Tax rate, per $1000 ..... 27.20

The valuation by precincts are as follows:

	Personal
Ward 1, Precinct 1	$100,750
Ward 1, Precinct 2	735,150
Ward 2, Precinct 1	369,850
Ward 2, Precinct 2	655,500
Ward 2, Precinct 3	609,650
Ward 3, Precinct 1	422,880
Ward 3, Precinct 2	1,079,590
Ward 4, Precinct 1	566,850
Ward 4, Precinct 2	90,150

GARDEN NEWS

We have repeatedly called the attention of home gardeners to the likelihood of serious damage from aphids on potatoes. They have been very bad in sections, particularly in the dry sections. The apple men throughout the season have been experiencing serious trouble with leaf hoppers which ordinarily frequent potatoes more than they do apple trees. The first brood this year appeared to be worse on apples than on potatoes. The second brood which is now making its appearance appears to be worse on potatoes than on apple foliage.

The apple men have been making a study of the control for this trouble and feel that they have nothing entirely satisfactory. The history of this insect has been that it becomes bad when it is bad it's natural parasites increase in numbers rapidly so that it is only a short time before the parasites become so numerous that they clean up the leaf hoppers.

The men who are trying spraying, find that it is necessary to use the nicotine sulphate or Black Leaf 40 about double the usual strength and add a lot of lime water which is made from slaking caustic lime. This liberates the nitrate quickly and makes the men using it sick unless they are strong users of tobacco and have become somewhat immune to the effects of nicotine. It is suggested to backyard gardeners that the best way of handling this matter is to keep the potato vines healthy and growing rapidly. This may require additional applications of quickly available nitrogen such as nitrate of soda sulphate of ammonia, liquid hen manure or the like.

Tomato Blossom End Rot

A lot of home gardeners are being disappointed daily when attempting to pick their first few ripe tomatoes and finding them of no value, because of a rot on the blossom end. This trouble is known as blossom end rot and is likely to be more serious upon the first few tomatoes upon dry land and upon vines that for some reason or other are not in as good a physical condition as they should be. The proper thing to do is to remove these tomatoes, bury them or place them in the garbage can. In other words, they should not be permitted to stay upon the plot adjacent to the tomatoes.

Back Yard Strawberry Beds

Strawberries and all other berries, as a matter of fact, have been so very high in price this year, that many home gardeners are making plans to put in small plantings of strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, currants and the like. Those who want to put in strawberries, may gain a little time by making their plans now to put in pot grown strawberries within the next 15 days. The land, in the meantime should be thoroughly prepared and heavily fertilized. It is well always to use a piece of land that has been cultivated for more than one season in order to prevent trouble in the future from white grub. It is rare that a commercial grower or backyard gardener ever over-fertilizes the land upon which he contemplates growing strawberries. Use fertilizer or manure in liberal quantities and then use as much again, if one wants good results.

Save Winter Squashes

Quite frequently now in gardens where winter squash are being grown can be found vines here and there that are dying. If an examination is made it will be found that the trouble is in the main stem where it emerges from the ground. If the stem is slit up and down a small, white vine borer will be discovered. The damage made by this animal can be quite largely done away with by covering the vines at the different joints where leaves come out with dirt. Root systems will develop at these joints which will carry the vine even though the stem is entirely cut off where it comes from the original root system.

European Corn Borer Quarantine

The larger share of Middlesex County is in the corn borer quarantined area. Home gardeners will do well to become familiar with regulations concerning this quarantine. Complete information can be obtained by addressing L. H. Worthley, Tremont Temple Building, Boston. In effect the regulations are such that any home gardener should be careful in giving away corn or other vegetables from the garden to persons who propose to carry it into homes outside of the quarantined area. In other words the Government is endeavoring to hold within the quarantined area all forms of vegetables and fruit which might possibly carry the borer.

If you are always being imposed upon, the chances are you deserve it.

Even if you don't know the difference between right and wrong the neighbors do.

ing and dead, who founded and built and who carry on this institution in the spirit of human helpfulness. Each patient cannot expect the entire time of a nurse. We patients must expect to do our part. On the whole the patients do. Most of the men in the ward "play the game," restraining themselves, thinking of the comfort of the others, helping each other to be cheerful.

However, it is well to remember that patients of whatever age are children. That explains in large measure their likes and dislikes. Let those critics who think they have found real faults remember that there is a limit to what a dollar can do; and that the fault may be owing to a lack of financial backing by the critic and his friends.

Another thing that impressed me was the constant readiness of the hospital. An illustration: It is midnight. A telephone call! The night nurse quietly enters the ward, and makes up a bed. Soon the doors swing open; and with hardly the sound of a foot fall, the "emergency case" is brought in on a stretcher. By the dimmed night lamp the attendants noiselessly prepare him, wife and daughter with drawn features looking helplessly on. Soon he is made ready. Again the doors open, and he is quietly taken out on the wheeled carrier. Darkness and silence in the ward! I fancy that I am the only one awake,—so quietly was all done. Again the doors open. Again the quiet company noiselessly bring in the sleeping patient, and put him to bed, all as calmly as a mother tucks in her baby at night. With a smile wife and daughter are dismissed, their faces no longer agast. The special nurse takes her place by the bedside. Faintly seen in the dim light she seems to impersonate the spirit of the "Fostering Mother"—the creating and conserving spirit of human kindness. What dramas in a hospital! What tragedies if the hospital were not always ready and equal to its task.

After all how cheerful it is! Don't think it is a place of gloom. Far from it! You go only on visiting days when we are "all dressed up" and quite properly solemn, to be sure. The way to see a hospital is to be one of us—in a bed. Then you would understand when I say it is like a club.

A typical day in a hospital: It is five o'clock in the morning—getting up time. All begin to talk and compare notes. One couldn't sleep because Jones snored so. Jones very sure he "never snored." Great laughter! Today Brown is going to take a "joy ride" (euphonious term for operation). Big breakfast, Brown, half a cup of salted water with a feather in it called "chicken broth!" O, well, Brown, perhaps you won't want even that when you wake up. Amid such good natured joking Brown cannot look at things very gloomily. By the time he goes on his "ride" he really begins to think he is going on a sort of picnic. Everyone else in the ward has been through it and how cheerful they all are! Of course Brown doesn't feel nervous. Companionship in misery goes far towards getting rid of the misery. This cheerful spirit (of course with some ups and downs) lasts all day till bed time at eight p. m. But, suppose a grouchy nurse should appear, how long would things remain cheerful? This good fellowship is a result of the kindly cheerfulness of the nurses. Every morning I noticed that it never failed that a radiant cheerfulness seemed to illuminate the ward when the day nurses, fresh and clean, burst in upon us with the light of the morning in their faces.

What hearty "good mornings!" We all have washed ourselves before the night nurse left; and, having no mirrors, we are quite proud of the results. Now our beds are made up and we are all freshened up for the day. The nurses want their charges, the beds and the room to look "very, very nice" for inspection. I feel like a small boy being prepared by his mother for Sunday School. For five minutes I fancy I must make inside the spotless bed with spread so neatly arranged. But here comes breakfast! Good-bye, perfect arrangement of coverlets! In spite of care things will get awry. I smooth things a bit before inspection. Guess everything "gets by" all right! Here comes the mail! What a delight is a simple card from a friend! Some "goodies" have been sent in which the nurse brings to me to open myself, remembering that I am a "child" and that a child likes to open bundles. If it is a fine day, perhaps I will be wrapped up as though for the Arctic, and a riotous sunshine on the piazza. It is a hard job for the nurses, but they laugh as they push; and the merry journey of twelve paces becomes a great adventure never to be forgotten. Dinner time comes before you know it. The afternoon may drag a little but the nurses come early to freshen you up for the night. Supper, and then the peace of the twilight! Bustle again as the night nurse and the orderly fix everyone cozy for the night. Time drags in the darkness if you are a light sleeper. If the aches come in the small of your back, you will think it weeks and weeks before you hear the cheerful rattle of coal in the kitchen, and see again the lights of morning. But, if only you can forget yourself and let your imagination run, you will find much to entertain you in the weird play of light and shadow, as the night nurse comes and goes through the swinging door.

These are just glimpses of life in a hospital, where little things look big and big things look little to one lying for weeks on his back. I have tried to show what it is like under the kindly spirit of Newton Hospital. "It is the spirit that giveth life." The Newton Hospital has a great work before it,—the guarding of the life of the people. Only by each and all of us enlisting in this work, each according to his means, but everyone with loyal service and appreciation, can the work go forward. Learn what it is doing. Read its reports. They show how efficiently it is spending your money. Enlist now for it is the leading one of the few organizations among us which are truly expressing the "Gospel of Service"—in action.

PROUD OF HER FAMOUS SONS

Massachusetts Has Sent Out Many Who Have Done Great Things in the World.

Not to be too insistent and greedy, Massachusetts and her "Old Colony" should always file their claims to the honor of producing men that are doing the new work of the world, as well as celebrating forever the Pilgrim Fathers, writes The Listener in the Boston Transcript. It is no accident, no mere coincidence, that both the pioneers of transatlantic air transportation should be Massachusetts men; the first man to navigate an airship from America to England was Commander Read, whose boyhood's home was South Hanson, Mass., and the first engineer to carry the big street traffic of New York city under the Hudson river is Clifford M. Holland, born at Somerset, Bristol county, thirty-six years ago. Both upper air and subterranean problems have brought laurels to boys of the Old Colony public schools. To be sure, Commander Read's education was completed at Annapolis Naval academy and Mr. Holland's at Harvard university, where he graduated in 1906. But there must be something in the soil and something in the system which brings it to pass so often that when great things have been done, or great things are to be accomplished, and the door is necessarily forced into the spot light of the press, and his antecedents are eagerly examined, the little old significant abbreviation, "Mass." is apt to appear in connection with some little town as his birthplace.

HAS GREAT FAITH IN COCONUT

German Who Has Tried It Declares
It to Be the Ideal Food for Sustenance of Man.

One of the strangest characters in the world is Auguste Englehardt, a young German who lives on the island of Kabakon, in the German New Guinea territory. He exists entirely on the coconut, and sleeps on a bed of sand.

Englehardt is a singularly handsome man of about thirty-five, possessing great wealth and a charming personality. He is known as the "Apostle of the Coconut," on account of the doctrine he teaches that the coconut is the original food of man, and should continue to be so, as all other foods are responsible for the bad passions in the heart and mind of man.

The "Apostle" claims to have over 500 disciples in America, and now the war is over he intends to leave his island home and come back to the old world and proclaim his teachings. He is also a "sun worshiper," living entirely in the open air, and adopting the simple dress of the natives, consisting merely of a "lava-lava," or loin cloth, and when in full dress, that is, when he receives visitors, this attire is completed by the addition of a wrist watch and a walking stick.

Brusa.

Brusa, into which British troops have entered without opposition, was the capital of Bithynia when Trajan appointed Pliny the Younger to govern the province. It was from Brusa, then Brusa, at the foot of Mt. Olympus, that Pliny wrote the letters to Trajan which are among the most interesting of his voluminous correspondence. It is said that Brusa owes its existence to some scheme of Hannibal's, but of the Roman and Bithynian city hardly any trace remains, though Brusa boasts of very fine old Mohammedan mosques. The city of Asia Minor is situated in lovely country, rich in fruit trees and watered by countless springs, and supports a manufacture of silk which should develop unhindered now that the lethargy of Turkish rulers no longer weighs on the city and its inhabitants.

It's Upkeep that Costs.

Experts have just completed an estimate for the high cost of maintaining a rat. If you have a rat on your premises, he is costing you $1.82 a year, according to these experts. They find that one pair of rats is directly responsible for 650,000 more rats in three years, the rat being a strong believer in the Roosevelt theory of large families. The damage in the United States in one year caused by these rodents is over $100,000,000. Over $15,000,000 in property losses is occasioned each year from fires started by rats gnawing the electric wires and gas pipes. The rat also is accused of spreading disease. An intensive campaign to demobilize the rat army is now in progress.

Supply Gas Deficiency.

It is expected that in the near future artificial gas for heating purposes will be substituted largely for natural gas in the Pittsburgh and other districts, where a considerable shortage in the supply of natural gas has developed. This was the prediction made at a conference held recently under the auspices of the Public Service Commission in Pittsburgh. The Philadelphia company, which has been a large supplier of natural gas for many years, it is stated, is now prepared to supply 7,000,000 cubic feet of artificial gas a day, and expects in the near future to be able to supply 30,000,000 cubic feet of artificial gas a day.

Real Discovery.

"He discovered the seedless raisin." "That's nothing. A bigger discovery than that was made by the man who found what a kick the raisin would put in soft drink."

WARNS AGAINST FRENZIED FINANCE

The hysterical after-war rush into forms of frenzied finances, especially on the part of the decent ordinary rank and file is very obnoxious to me, an injured veteran of this war.

History shows that there is generally an after-war scramble for the spoils on the part of profiteers, etc., but that when a whole people gets the notion that prosperity can be attained and maintained by miraculous means, i.e., without working constructively for it, there is grave danger of general degeneracy.

In this war we tried to help Europeans to wage a war to end war. This get-rich-quick-without-working scheme, means it seems to me, taking an unfair advantage of the shattered condition of our present Allies and thereby decrease friendship.

The vast profits so apparent in a scheme recently exploited in Boston must come from some people somewhere and my study leads me to the conclusion that only as the individual members of a group of people have a natural appreciation of love for good honest citizenship in this work-a-day world does the group progress.

Now although such mad rushes for unearned wealth do not decrease with the rapidity with which I wish that they would, still I have faith in the people who were willing to go the limit in the effort to get European sufferers out of a dire difficulty. I'm sure that the ideals which actuated the pioneer patriot of this country still live in the hearts of most of those who now make up its citizenship and that the present desire to become richer even at the expense of our foreign neighbors will turn into an effort to "carry on" the more unselfish work of those who suffered in Flanders Fields and in army hospitals.

And right here let me say that the returned veteran of this war is the greatest asset that this country possesses. He took part with all his young heart in the most unselfish enterprise ever entered upon by a freedom loving people—and he wants now above all else to "carry on" evermore and more efficiently. I'm sure that, directly their neighbors, the public, realize the fact that less than one-half of the members of the Great American Army have been through the sixth grade, they will provide means for giving these fellows what they deserve—at least a little further professional training for their life work. A rational society does not overlook real dividends which may take more than "45 days" to mature.

Ex-service men who are in dire need of encouragement are those still suffering and convalescing in hospitals and those who have gone to prison since coming from the army service; and I hereby ask anyone wishing to write to any such, to communicate with me or the American Legion to that effect. Prisoners need letters, visits, books on their trades, etc., and a helping hand toward a good position and better life upon release.

A number of convalescing injured veterans are studying in and near Boston, several of whom live and try to improve their health in boarding houses. Several of these lonely students long for the blessings of a home atmosphere as they study to become more efficient and to prolong life. The following is a delicate thing to suggest but I nevertheless do so because, being one who seeks a home for my period of study at a reasonable rate of compensation myself, I am familiar with the need of these men. I hereby earnestly urge those who can find it in their hearts to open their homes to these men to tell me so, care of Harvard Summer School, and I will see that they are given the opportunity of becoming acquainted with some recuperating veterans, many of whom would grace any American fireside.

The family circles which see the injured veteran through his convalescing study period will be helping greatly in encouraging and strengthening the men who are to be a great force in carrying on to the end that selfish get-rich-quick schemes will be taboo in this land and that equality of opportunity will continue to be more and more a fact.

Yours in true comradeship,

No one will deny that if the postal service is to meet the requirements of the country, it is absolutely necessary that fair compensation be given to the nation's faithful employees in this service. The last congress made a start in the right direction by slightly raising the salaries of the postal workers, but this should not be accepted as the last word of congress on the subject. Under the circumstances attending the vote on the report of the postal commission, it was not possible to present amendments, but it is to be hoped that the next congress will see its way clear to do justice to the workers in this all-important branch of the federal service.—Sioux Falls (S. In order to acquaint the public with the general telephone situation, and some of the reasons for delay in completing new installations—chief among which is the difficulty of getting the numerous kinds of necessary material—we have prepared a series of announcements of which this is the second.

Reserve Telephone Equipment Exhausted

We used to engineer our plant—switchboards, cables, circuits, and all necessary parts thereof—to anticipate by several years the growth of population or manufacturing in any particular place or region. Consequently, we were always able to meet promptly demands for service, no matter how large or unexpected.

Hence, during the war period we were able to give service to a rapidly increasing list of subscribers, although we had little priority consideration as a necessary industry and were compelled by government restriction to abandon our normal programme of advance construction.

When the war ended, however, these reserve facilities had been almost wholly pre-empted by the growing demand. Our usual reserve of central offices, switchboards, power plants, conduits, cables, manholes, pole lines no longer existed. We required rubber, paper, copper wire, lumber, silk, clay, glass, porcelain, paraffin, and many other things not ordinarily associated in the public mind with telephone service, in order to restore our reserves.

Every business man will realize the difficulty experienced in getting some, if not all, of these things. We had to get all, or devise some efficient substitute for those which could not be had.

We have installed more new telephones thus far this year than in any previous similar period of telephone history; and we could have done still more but for the exhaustion of our reserve equipment caused by general conditions of production and transportation. These are showing signs of improvement, however.

Our morale is good. Our people are earnestly desirous of giving good service and of extending it as fast as possible. Although there are many persons to whom we cannot at once give telephone service because of conditions wholly outside our organization, we are determined to meet their desires as soon as it is humanly possible to do so.

ARLINGTON THEATRE

The Arlington Theatre will reopen next Monday night, August 16, with "Turn to the Right," one of the most popular human interest plays given to the stage in recent years.

There has been a somewhat notable addition to the cast of veteran principles in the person of Maude Odell, Jr., daughter of the musical comedy favorite of that name, who will make her stage debut here.

The Messrs. Shubert announce a new policy for the Arlington Theatre this season. They will present established successes which have previously had long runs in Boston or in New York at much lower prices than was charged for the original production.

The attractions for the earlier weeks of the season include a wide variety of productions; opening with "Turn to the Right" on August 16, to be followed by a society play, "Mrs. Jimmy Thompson."

EDITORIAL

Newton will be the centre of political interest next week when the Republicans from all over the State will come to Norumbega Park to see and hear Governor Coolidge, Governor Morrow of Kentucky and other prominent speakers. It should be the opening gun of the presidential campaign in this part of the country and Newton is fortunate in having it on our own "front porch" so to speak. In this connection, we hope the appeal we made last week for financial support in the campaign will not be overlooked.

It takes real money to make a real campaign and the issues to be settled by the people this fall will affect the country so vitally during the next few years that those who realize the situation ought to use every kind of publicity to have the facts understood. This will cost money, but if every Republican will contribute a little, it will not be necessary for the few to contribute a great deal. Help to "carry on" this most important work.

The expected has happened and Newton tax payers will have the unusual privilege of paying for the piper this year at the rate of $27.20 per $1000, an advance of about 30 per cent over the rate of last year. Also, and in addition thereto, do not forget that the tremendous increase in valuations—more than double that of any previous year—means that the taxpayer gets it coming and going, in the increase in valuation and in the increase in rate. The big increase in the rate has been forecasted in these columns ever since the city budget was passed last spring and we are indeed fortunate in having the rate less than $28. As we have said before, the large appropriations for school teachers' salaries accounts for nearly 50 per cent of the increase and the general increase in wages and prices of materials is responsible for the rest, to say nothing of having the state take away a most substantial sum which would otherwise have come to us as our part of the income tax.

The Assessors state that $2,600,000 of the increased valuations is the result of new buildings, while some $4,000,000 is the result of revaluations. The largest gain in real estate is at Chestnut Hill, where $1,580,000 has been added to the 1919 figures. Waban is a good second with a gain of $1,134,000, the south side of Newtonville gains $965,000 and Ward 7 increases $901,000.

Personal property shows gains in all but two precincts, Precinct 3 of Ward 2 and Precinct 1 of Ward 5 showing a loss. The greatest gain is made in Ward 7, some $208,000.

NOT MUCH PROFITEERING

I have found that there is not as much profiteering in Newton as many people thought, but we will make a thorough investigation of the entire city and I feel confident that if there is any profiteering, we will find it and take necessary steps to stop it," said Andrew Prior, Sealer of Weights and Measures of Newton to the News this morning. Mr. Prior was placed in charge of investigating conditions pertaining to profiteering by the Federal Government two weeks ago, and since that time has been working hard to uncover any unfair prices that may be existing in Newton.

Mr. Prior stated that he is now receiving reports from various markets in the city, showing the prices of meat and the amount paid to wholesalers. When the complete report is in the hands of Mr. Prior a comparison will be made of the various figures submitted. This report will be turned in weekly. The grocers are now receiving similar blank reports to be filled out for purposes of comparison.

Mr. Prior said that he had received complaints of some of the larger stores in the city, and that as a result he had ordered some of them to lower prices on certain articles. The price of bread should not be over 17 cents and milk not over 17 and one half cents. "Of course in selling one quart of milk we give the dealer the benefit of the half cent, but when two quarts are sold at the same time the charge should be 35 cents, and not 36 cents as some dealers now ask," was Mr. Prior's statement in this regard.

Another cause of trouble is the small corner store, which serves as a convenience for neighbors in that vicinity. Mr. Prior stated that it has been found that this type of store, knowing that nearby residents depended on them considerably for minor articles often advanced their prices one or two cents on the least pretext, and rather than walk some distance to another store the customer paid without saying a word. This class of dealers will receive a visit from one of Mr. Prior's agents some day and a stop will be put to this form of profiteering.

"As many investigations of this nature have been conducted in various places with no apparent results, many people are tired of hearing of investigations, but I feel confident that we will show results, and I am ready at all times to receive complaints from any persons in Newton. All charges are confidential and no information concerning the source of our information will be divulged," was Mr. Prior's concluding remark.

It is sometimes discouraging not to be believed when you tell the truth, but maybe, sometimes people refuse to believe the truth when others tell it about you.

ALDERMEN MEET

There were 12 aldermen present Wednesday evening at a special meeting of the Board called by Mayor Childs, largely for the purpose of deciding whether or not the tax rate would be affected by a transfer of money from the Excess and Deficiency account into revenue.

The matter was duly referred to the Finance Committee and on their report it was deemed inexpedient to take any action.

$5000 was appropriated to be expended under the direction of the Mayor for the purchase, distribution and sale of army food and other supplies from the army base at South Boston.

A number of garage permits were approved.

Vice-President Forkall was in the chair and Aldermen Madden, Carter, Morse, Whidden, Rogers, Hickey, Spaulding, Clement, Cook, Allen and Pratt were present.

The Superior Court was represented by Justices W. B. Stevens, W. C. Wall, Henry A. King, J. D. McLaughlin, P. M. Keating, F. H. Chase, J. H. Sisk and Elias B. Bishop.

CREHORE MILL SOLD

The Crehore Mill at Newton Lower Falls, one of the oldest manufacturing plants in this city was purchased on August 1st by the firm of Marr & Dennison, paper dealers of Boston.

This mill was established by the Crehore family in 1823 and has been in their hands until the recent death of Mr. Frederic M. Crehore. Representative Bernard Early, the general manager and who has been employed in the mill since 1877, acquired the property temporarily on May 1st and has just disposed of it.

The mill manufactures card and press board, making a specialty of a black jacquard which is much used in cotton mills.

It is understood that the new owners will continue the business on the same lines.

Mr. Early who intends to take a long rest from business cares has received an attractive offer from one of the large banking institutions of

NORUMBEGA PARK

Norumbega Park, that beautiful sylvan resort on the Charles is leaving the most successful season in its history of over a quarter of a century. Much of this is attributed to the new policy inaugurated by Manager Carl Alberte on his return to resume the directorship of Norumbega after an absence of three years. This policy comprises a feature photoplay each week, sometimes two, and added specialty musical numbers in the theatre are embellished by the Symphony concert orchestra of solo musicians.

The big photoplay feature for the coming entire week every afternoon and evening beginning Monday, August 16th, will be the picture of the hour "The Lost Battalion" with the famous Lieutenant-Colonel Whittlesby and other heroes of the great war. The added attractions in the theatre will consist of Lovett and O'Brien two singing artists, with a very pleasing and novel repertoire and Marion Kay in a character singalong. And there will be still another musical specialty as a special attraction for the coming week. Tuesday and Friday mornings at 11.30 in the theatre "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp" will be presented.

Kingtchen an Ancient City.

Kingtchen is one of the four largest towns of China. Technically it is not a city. It is a town, because it has no wall. In reality it is a busy industrial city, with a population of 300,000. Two-thirds of the people are directly engaged in the manufacture and sale of porcelain and pottery. Historically it dates back to the Han dynasty, 200 A. D. It is during this period that we find the first records of the production of porcelain in China, though earthenware vessels were probably produced some centuries earlier.

JOHNNY NOW IN "TRAINING"

Wife of Absent-Minded Veteran Will See That the Course He Is Taking Is Thorough.

"Johnny" did not come marching home, at least not to the wife awaiting his return in an Iowa town, after a certain fighting division returned from France. The wife waited and wondered. Comrades of the man returned.
To the waiting wife they had little information to offer, except to say that "Johnny" had been wounded in battle, that he had recovered and had come home on a transport.

"If disabled soldiers are given training at the hands of the federal board for vocational training," mused the wife, "and Johnny was wounded, he may ask for training, and—well, I will just write to the board asking them to notify me if 'Johnny' does ask for training."

A letter to the board brought back information that "Johnny" slightly disabled, was about to take a course in training. The wife gathered a few clothes, boarded a train and within a few hours walked in on "Johnny."

Here is the place to insert a few stars, exclamation marks, interrogation points, quotations galore.

There was a reunion. District vocational officers will not talk. They smile, but refuse to answer even the most innocent questions. Their reports do not indicate a sudden withdrawal from training of any veteran admitted. It is understood that the wife is now on the job to see that "Johnny" gets the training he applied for and another sort of training taught only by the affectionate wives of absent-minded husbands.—Exchange.

UNSPOILED TRIBES OF AFRICA

English Traveler Pays High Tribute to Morals and Behavior of Negroes Whom He Met.

Summing up seven years of travel in the interior of Africa, where the natives are "unspoiled by alcohol, European morals, and the love of gain either by fair means or fraud," an Englishman, Mr. E. Torday, speaks very well indeed of the African negro.
In two crossings of the Congo Free State he met no tribe that "was not naturally good-tempered, and, in most instances, hospitable and trustful."

Customs of course are different in a land where one may know the tribe to which a man belongs by the design that has been painfully embossed on his skin. The traveler tells of tribes where all the women who would be in the fashion paint themselves red from top to toe, and are so fond of the color that if a gift is given them they immediately paint it red also. Cannibals
he met, and people who live in houses
the door of which looks like a window, and others, remote from the inventions of civilization, who transmit complicated messages over long distances by signals on a wooden gong. Odd human beings, as the rest of us hear of them;
but the traveler left them with regret, looking down from his steamer on the crowd gathered when he was leaving the Congo, "among whom there was not one who was not my friend."

"Deke" was his name among the natives, and as he steamed away, there stood his "dear black friends, waving their hands, cloth, branches, and anything that came to hand, and shouting in the native tongue, 'Good-by, Deke;
don't forget us.'"

Word Coinage of War.

"Don't be a 'dud,'" said the lad, halfcoaxingly, half-contemptuously, to a schoolmate upon whom he was urging action to which the other opposed resistance. Thus a word used colloquially as designating shabby clothes or semi-valueless effects acquires a meaning but indirectly traceable to the original. A remarkable number of new words, either applying to new inventions or to be classed as "soldiers' slang," came into being during the war and have been recognized in a 1919 dictionary. Presently philologists will be exploring a search for roots, and certain among them will be duly incorporated into our language, while others will drop out as words of occasion only.

Unkind Remarks.

In haste to catch a street car before the conductor closed the door, a man dropped a two-pound package of sugar in the street. The sack burst; the granulated cane was ruined. He had to wait for the next car and to hear what the vox populi exclaimed over the disaster. Here's some of it:
"Just wait until his old woman
meets him."

"His crushed oats will taste foggy for three weeks."

"Sweeten the corner where you are."

Moral: Carry a basket.

It Was.

"The law ain't nigh as flexible as it ought to be!" grumbled the landlord of the Petunia tavern. "There's a whole lot of cases that it can't begin to cover properly."

"What is one of them, for instance?"
asked the guest.

"Why, right here, tomorrow, a life insurance agent is going to be tried for calling an old stock seller a liar, and I'll be dod-blasted if I see how, according to law, they can both be stuck!"—Kansas City Star.

tended for to please call and get it.—

USED THE CONVINCING WORD

Story of Traveler and the Cab Horse
Used as Object Lesson in Good Salesmanship.

"So you let him get away, eh?" said
the proprietor with mingled bitterness and philosophy. "And you had him right to the point. Your sales talk was good, right up to the last minute, when you omitted the convincing word."

"Looks that way."

"Sure does. You remind me forcibly of the case of a colored hack driver down south. One day he and his dilapidated cab and moth-eaten horse were all asleep by the curb. It was noon.
Ten minutes till time for the train and the station was a mile away. A fat traveling man of middle age came sweating along toting two heavy grips and hastening toward the station. Seeing the cab idle, he called to the driver:

"Hey, boy, can you get me to that train in ten minutes?"

"Dunno, boss; dis hyer hoss he putty tolaible ole. He was in de ahmy,
'boss."

"Was he in the war? I was in the cavalry myself. Get into that cab and I'll get that horse there in time."

"The driver got inside and the traveling man mounted the driver's seat.
As he did so he yelled 'tention!' The old horse stuck his head up for the first time in twenty years—tail ditto.
'Charge!' yelled the fare sharply. He charged. Away he went, striking fire from the bowlders. The outfit reached the station just as the train did. 'Halt!'
yelled the fare and leaped from the seat as the horse came to a skating stop. Tossing $1 to the astonished occupant of the cab, the traveler ran to his train.

"That negro driver was the most astonished man in twelve states. He had seen a miracle occur right under his nose."

DISCARD ALL SPOILED FOOD

Death Lurks in Even a Taste of Canned Stuff That Contains Putrefactive Germs.

It is an extraordinary fact that there are still many persons in this country who undertake to salvage canned food, which they know to be spoil, by making it into salads and such dishes.

The Journal of the American Medical association publishes a long report by Drs. Charles Thorn, Ruth B.
Edmondson and L. S. Giltner of the microbiological laboratory, United States department of agriculture, Washington, on several recent deaths due to eating canned asparagus that had spoiled. And it adds an editorial saying that "botulism," as the fatal disease is called, is "disturbingly frequent in the United States (apparently no case has ever occurred in Great

The canned vegetables to blame are almost always those put up at home, and have generally been treated without boiling, although boiling does not always kill the putrefactive germs that cause the trouble.

When canned foods spoil they are not even to be tasted, for a minute quantity is sufficient to cause death.
Nor should domestic animals be permitted to eat them. There would seem to be no occasion for any one to meet this quick but terrible death, for spoiled canned vegetables always smell nauseous, and the vile odor ought to be warning enough for anybody.

Inventor of Corliss Engine.

George Henry Corliss, inventor of the Corliss engine, was born in Easton, N. Y., 102 years ago. His first device was a machine for sewing boots and shoes. After several other minor inventions had been completed by him, he settled in Providence, R. I., in 1844 and became head of a firm engaged to the manufacture of steam engines. Here his talent began to show full scope, and in 1848 he completed the original form of what has since become famous the world over as the Corliss engine. By the invention Corliss revolutionized the use of stationary engines throughout the world, and conferred a great and lasting boon upon industry. Corliss, who became immensely wealthy, died in Providence in 1888.

Gordon Wasn't Worried.

Mother asked Gordon to keep the baby quiet while she hurried to the grocery. Soon after she left the baby began to cry and Gordon gave her his watch to play with. When mother returned she was horrified to see baby putting the watch in her mouth.

"Good gracious!" she exclaimed, as she seized the watch. "Why did you give it to baby; she might have swallowed it."

"I was holdin' the chain," explained Gordon. "so it couldn't go far. But even if she did swallow it I wouldn't care very much, 'cause pa has promised me
a better one."

Italian Libya now comprises the two provinces of Tripolitana and Cirenaica, and lies along the north coast of Africa between Tunis (French) on the west and Egypt on the east, in longitude from about 9 to 23 degrees east. The extreme northerly point of Libya is at about the parallel of latitude 33 degrees north; the southernmost point is unknown, as the territory runs south into the unmapped Sahara indefinitely.

THE LEAGUE RUNS AMUCK

Campaign issues are not static.
Even party platforms cannot give them a rigidity that is bound to endure from convention-time to election-day. It is apparent at this moment that the truth of the above is causing consternation among the Democrats but is not at all disturbing to the Republicans. Whether Wilson considers the fate of the League Covenant the dominant question of the hour, or continues to maintain that it is only secondary, cannot alter the fact that its future is being determined by Europe and not by America.

On August 3, at San Sebastian, Spain, the militarization of the League of Nations was decreed by the Council of the League. An international general staff, to direct all military operations undertaken in the name of the League, was established.
Had not the United States Senate remained loyal to the basic principles of our institutions, the army and navy of the United States would now be under the command of this general staff.

The cherubic little creature that was to lead the nations, according to him to whom it owed its being, into the flower-bedecked paths of peace has grown suddenly into a militant Frankenstein shocking to the eyes of its creator as it proceeds to turn its pruning hooks into spears and its ploughshares into swords.

The adoption of the Treaty without change by the dotting of an "i" or the crossing of a "t" is not a matter of importance now, even at the White House. The League of Nations is armed and out on the warpath, but thank God, this nation retains its right and its power to make war or peace at its own volition. Cox need worry no longer about what White has to say concerning the League as an issue.

NEWTON AVIATOR BACK FROM TURKEY

Lt. Charles F. Weedon, Jr., of Glen Avenue, Newton Centre, reached home Monday night after a year and a half of absence in the service of the Near East Relief, Asia Minor. He endured the terrible 62 day siege when the Turks attacked Uria and the French garrison of 500, some of them Verdun veterans were massacred. Everyone praises the work of the Near and Far East Commissions.

Sober-minded business men who have voted the Democratic ticket at the last two elections will welcome the opportunity to vote for level-headed men of the Harding-Coolidge type. And young men who will cast their first vote next November will take advantage of the opportunity to align themselves with a forward-looking, constructive, sane political party.—Nashua (N. H.) ## Saving the Tin.

After trying many other processes of recovering tin from old cans there is now, according to La Nature (Paris), a return to the old-fashioned method of boiling the scraps (well cleaned) in a solution containing an excess of free alkali and saltpeter. The tin is recovered as crystals of stannate of soda and the alkali and saltpeter can be used over and over again.

Too Many Missing Periods.

Mary was in the hospital for some time and did not see as much of her mother as she would have liked, and bewailed the fact by saying: "Oh, mamma, I only see you at the tops and bottoms of these days and I don't like it a bit."

NO SPOONING IN AIRPLANES

Sheer impossibility of Sociability While Flying May Constitute Bar to Popularity.

The most fatal thing of all at the present time to the popularity of flying is its unsociability. The pilot may have the profile of a Greek god, but if every time he turns it to speak it is necessary to shut off the engine, and one's heart stops, too, it is difficult to think of a witty response. And mostly he does not turn it. All one has for company is the upper two-thirds of the back of a leather helmet. As a match-making proposition the airplane is a failure. And as for descending to some flowery meadow and there saying all the things he has been thinking up while in the air, I can only say personally that after two hours of flying, I was stone deaf, and I wouldn't have known whether he was telling me if I adored me or was asking me if I wanted a drink of water.

I was quite deaf for some time. We landed at an army aviation field before a lot of ground mechanics and flyers, and if I expected that the removal of my goggles and discovery of my sex was going to make any sensation I was disappointed. D'you think they ran up and shook me by the hand and observed that I was a brave woman?

IS AIRMEN'S PATRON SAINT

Michael, With His Wings and Spear, Is Peculiarly Qualified for That High Position.

It was the wing of St. Michael, chief of the archangels and head of the celestial militia, which Jeanne d'Arc heard, they say, whirling about her in the little garden of Domremy when she had her softly spoken but insistent call to arms. And now, as if it were not enough to be the one who called Jeanne d'Arc from Domremy to Rouen, St. Michael is also the patron saint of aviators, because he heads celestial warriors and battles in the air.

In a London church on Spanish place—the church to which King Alfonso went when he was there—there is a new stained window with an airplane mosaicked into its design, and that window is dedicated to St. Michael, patron saint of airmen.

St. George met his dragon on the earth, but St. Michael battled with the devil and his angels in the celestial spaces and threw them out of heaven. With his wings and his spear he was the great prototype of the armored airplane, and it may be that even the inspiring Jeanne d'Arc did not satisfy him and that he has always kept in his mind this time when men should fly and fight as he did.—New York Evening Post.

Horse Adapts Itself to Change.

The horse, which as Thomas Winans predicts, will be extinct ten years hence, has shown a remarkable knack of adapting itself to changing geological periods. The animal has increased in height, while others have shrunk and disappeared; but the fossil remains of horses, only a few inches high, which roamed our planet at least two million years ago, are almost perfect models of the existing type. The most marked change has been in its feet. Beginning with five toes to each foot, the horse met changing conditions by occasionally shedding a toe, and is now the only one-toed mammal known to naturalists. That and the progressive increase in its size have been the only evolutionary processes which the horse found necessary so as to keep its place in the sun. As a worker, weight for weight, it beats the elephant hollow.—Exchange.

Languages of Belgium.

Belgium has two chief languages: Flemish in East Flanders and West Flanders, Antwerp, Limburg and Brabant provinces, or the north and east; French in the province of Liege, Namur and Hainaut and in Luxembourg. The French-speaking Belgians claim to descend from the Belgie, being called Walloons. In 1910, of the 7,423,784 people of Belgium, 3,220,662 spoke only Flemish, 2,833,334 spoke only French, 871,278 spoke both Flemish and French, 31,415 spoke German, 74,983 spoke French and German, 8,652 spoke Flemish and German, 52,547 spoke all three languages.

She Should Worry.

"Della," said Mrs. Barrows sternly, "I met that policeman today who sat in the kitchen with you so long last night. I took advantage of the opportunity to speak to him."
"Oh, go on now," replied Della, with a smile. "Ye needn't think that'll make me wan bit jealous, mum. Oi have got him safe enough."—New York Globe.

Thought Snake Was Round.

Little John, who had often been told to be sure of a statement before he made it, was visiting his grandparents on the farm. One day he rushed into the house exclaiming: "I saw a snake out there, grandpa."
"What kind of snake was it?" asked grandpa.
"I am not right sure," said little John, "but I think it was a round one."

ROUGHING IT

Interesting Experience of a Newton Lad Now Surveying in the Olympic Range in Washington

The following letters were written by Mr. Wentworth Blodgett of West Newton, who is a member of a government surveying party now in the wilds of the Olympic Mountain range in the state of Washington.

Forks, Washington, July 22, 1920.

Dear M.—

I suppose you will wonder what I am doing back in this town after writing you that we were setting out for the woods. Well the truth of the matter is that I came down with the packer to get supplies for camp. We left camp day before yesterday with nine horses and made sixteen miles the first day over one of the roughest trails that I have ever seen. We had to ford the river at least twenty times and go over a trail that I don't believe fifteen people go over a year at the most. The game warden that went up with us said he was the only one that had been on it this year and he hadn't been on it since March. We stopped that night at the only place where people live, which is called Spruce, but there is only one cabin there. The people that live there are Germans but they are awfully nice and have lived there forty years.

They have two daughters that are over six feet and must weigh over two hundred and believe me they are some workers. They get up early in the morning, milk six cows, and then they either hay or log or do something equally strenuous all day and then walk four or five miles at night to find the cows that wander in the woods. But their mother sure can cook. For breakfast we had mush, potatoes, eggs, cheese, coffee, all the milk and cream we could drink, biscuits, and then the main course of hot cakes and believe me I never tasted such good cakes in my life. I ate twelve on top of the rest of my breakfast, so you can see there is nothing the matter with my appetite. I had my first elk meat there and it sure was good. Yesterday we left there at eight o'clock, swam the horses across the river and made the twenty-three miles to this town without any particular incident.

Our trip going in was rather exciting though we had eleven horses when we set out from here and all were packed except two, one that the head packer rides and the other that the chief's wife rode on as she went in to cook. I was first leading three horses which were tailed together, that is the lead rope of each horse was tied to the tail of the one in front, and the lead the first one. Just after we got out of town the trailing goes up a steep bluff that has a drop on one side. I was going along all right when the horse I was leading suddenly reared and then stopped. I couldn't see at first what had happened as the pack was in the way but I looked underneath the horse I was leading and saw that one horse was over the edge and the horse in front was just able to hold him on. I hung on to the rope to keep him from falling until the other fellows came up.

and cut his pack off and hauled him back on the trail. Nothing else happened that day except we didn't get to Spruce until ten o'clock and had to ford the river in the dark. The next day we started up the river with the game warden for a guide and believe me it was a hard trip, just one ford after another and a good part of the trail up the bars of the river which are all rocks and are very hard on both men and horses.

After we had lunch we were going along when all of a sudden the warden's dog began barking to beat the deuce off to the right of the trail. He grabbed his rifle off his saddle and tore into the woods. Bill and I tied our horses and went after him and arrived just in time to see him shoot a mountain lion out of a tree. It was a large one being over eight feet long and it was a corker. I bought it from him on the spot for ten dollars as I thought I would like to have it as I had seen it shot. After skinning it we went on until we came to where the trail goes up a bluff and I am not exaggerating when I say the last part of it is almost perpendicular, with the river on one side. The first two or three horses got over some how and then a great big grey got almost up but couldn't quite make it, turned a complete backward somersault and came down the hill head over heels, finally he landed against a tree and stuck there. We cut his pack off, got him on his feet again and managed to haul him over. The next horse started to lead up and go about half way when it slipped off the edge and went down the hill, turned around on the way and landed on its head and the funny part was that neither horse was hurt. The next horse I started to lead up and got about half way up and had to unpack then we got a couple of fellows on its lead rope, tied a rope around its saddle, took a hitch around a tree and managed to haul it up over. At last we got them all up packed up again and were on our way, we hadn't gone very far until we ran into a baby elk and a little farther on a whole band tore across the trail and went across the river. They are great big things, some of the bulls weighing over 1500 pounds. I haven't had a chance to go hunting yet but I am going to try and get one on my way back. I have seen so many interesting things that I can't half tell you about them in a letter. Last Sunday we waded up the river about six miles from camp until we got above the snow line and took some pictures. We could see a big glacier from where we were but didn't have time to get to it. The country here is even more beautiful than the Yellowstone Park I think, from one spot we could see five water falls coming down the cliffs of the canon we were in and could look up to the top and just see herds of elk feeding. There are hundreds of elk and deer around.

Love to all.

Wentworth.

A GIRLS COSY CORNER

A Suggestion that Newton Copy the Plan of the Girls City Club of Boston

"Come with me to the Girls' City Club for luncheon," said Peggy B.

"The Girls' City Club," I said,

"where is it?"

"Eight Newbury street, just around the corner from Arlington."

A quaint entrance from Newbury street at the sign of the Chimney Corner led to a room with casement windows opening to the south: a hearth with old fire dogs, crane, and kettle; fascinating Mayflower cupboards; and wall decorations of candles in silver sconces between Old Colonial mirrors. Polished tables, some large, others small, were laid for luncheon.

"I rather thought you'd like The Chimney Corner," said Peggy, as we finished a most satisfactory lunch.

What most appeals, the good food or the quaint setting?"

"I think it's the atmosphere, Peggy B," I said, "homeyness, daintiness, and good cheer."

"Now," said Peggy, "come and meet the Club Director, Miss Hackett, who by the way, is a Newtonville girl. Both Miss Hackett and the House Manager, Miss Webb are Simmons graduates." As the Director showed us the Club House, she told us something of the Girls' City Club. Organized in November, 1918, with 200 members, it had at first hired rooms at 607 Boylston street. In the summer of 1919 a group of friends loaned money enough to enable the club to take over the property at 8 Newbury street for a clubhouse. The present membership is so large—over 2000—that a plan has been devised to group the membership into small circles with two leaders for each. There are forty different lines of activity in which different classes are interested. "Our aim," said Miss Hackett, "is more than a self-supporting club for young women, it is to make a real home for the girl who is away from her family and accustomed surroundings."

From attic to chimney corner we went. On the top floor are a kitchenette and a supper room where members may cook and serve meals; a writing room; a sky-light lounge; a corner with a mirror; a place for Beauty Hygiene too with all the fixings. One flight below this is a playroom for acting, and singing and dancing. On the second floor is the library—a beautiful room. The first floor cares for business, answers questions, and welcomes guests, and here also is the Living Room. The pictures in this room are loaned by Fenway Studio, 25 artists contributing.

Once more we are back in the Chimney Corner. "This Chimney Corner Restaurant which is also the Club Dining Room," said Miss Hackett, "is our business venture. Guest privileges here are extended to all who are interested. We feed daily about 175 at lunch, and 90 at dinner, with varying numbers for afternoon tea."

Although the club is self-governing it has an Advisory Committee of 18, of which Mrs. Odlin Roberts is chairman. In their last report this committee says: "As we have followed the club through its first year our enthusiasm has deepened into love and faith. We believe that though the girls need the club, the Community needs it too, to make Boston more a home for us all."

As Peggy and I took our train for Newton, there came to our minds the appeal in a recent issue of the Graphic for homes for teachers, and suddenly we asked each other, "Why not a Cosy Corner Club in Newton—a club whose members might meet at least once a day and dine together?" (What a difference between taking nourishment and dining!)

"I strongly suspect," said Peggy B., "that there are many besides teachers who would be glad to join such a club. The greater the diversity of interest the better for the success of a dining club."

Not only would a club of this sort prove a blessing to those who are temporarily away from home, but with the present problems of domestic service might it not make its appeal to others? The difficulty of finding servants has made the care of many large houses burdensome.

There may be home-makers who would aid in the solution of the housing problem for teachers if this did not involve preparation of dinner. Of course like all new enterprises the club would start from small beginnings, though start it must upon a sound business basis under intelligent, skillful management.

Mr. Editor, is our little day-dream of a Cosy Corner Club wholly impracticable in Newton—a city noted for its public-spirited men and women with courage and vision? If there are those among your readers who would welcome and aid such a movement in our community, will you permit me to ask them to send their views upon the subject to Peggy B., care of Newton Graphic?

DEATH OF MR. WISWELL

Mr. Stephen A. Wiswell, long actively connected with the wholesale confectionery trade in Boston, died on Tuesday at his home at 68 Chester street, Newton Highlands, in his seventy-fourth year. He had been in gradually failing health for some time, and since June had been away from his business responsibilities with the New England Confectionery Company, Summer street. After leaving his desk, Mr. Wiswell, accompanied by his wife, went to Garden City, Long Island, N. Y., for a stay of several weeks, with the hope of benefiting his health.

He was born in Dorchester and was the son of Joseph and Mary (Knowles) Wiswell. He attended the Dorchester public schools and after finishing his course at the high school, he began his business career with the former old-time firm of Fobes, Hayward & Co., manufacturing confectioners in Charlestown. From that employment Mr. Wiswell went to Chicago, where he remained for about ten years in the employ of the Valvoline Oil Company.

Mr. Wiswell resigned from that position to return to his former connection with Fobes, Hayward & Co., and, when this firm united with the former houses of Wright & Moody and Chase & Co. to form the corporation of the New England Confectionery Company, Mr. Wiswell remained with the new interests and continued with these up to this time. At the company's large factory in Summer street he was connected with the sales department.

When a resident of Dorchester, Mr. Wiswell joined the Union Lodge of Masons, one of the oldest in this country, which was chartered on June 16, 1796, and of which Paul Revere was grandmaster. Mr. Wiswell was a member of the New England Confectioners' Club and from his long connection with the candy business he was widely known throughout the confectionery trade in this country.

He married Miss Maria Drake of Portland, Me., by whom he is survived, together with two daughters, Miss Bertha Wiswell of Newton Highlands, and Mrs. Arthur A. Brown (Estelle Wiswell) of Garden City, Long Island; also by a son, Mr. Herbert Joseph Wiswell of Charlestown, W. Va.

THE MARSHFIELD PAGEANT

Newton was well represented at the Pageant at the Old Winslow House at Marshfield last Saturday. Donald Hagar of Newtonville personated Massasoit, while his brothers Stuart and Malcolm took other prominent parts.

In the tableau called "The Call of the New World," presented by residents of Rexhame, appeared Benjamin S. Hinckley of Newton and his daughter, Mary, while from West Newton were Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Hutchinson, Marion Hutchinson and Arthur P. Friend and his little granddaughter, Rebecca Sherman.

Arthur F. Blanchard, formerly of Newton Centre personated Parson Robinson in two tableaux. Miss Alice Sampson of Newtonville was also on the program. Many Newton people were in the audience.

NORUMBEGA PARK

At this time when Poland is so in the public eye, the announcement of Manager Carl Alberte of Norumbega Park that among the added musical attractions of the long motion picture and musical program in the theatre beginning Monday, August 23, will be noted Polish tenor is of peculiar interest. Stanislas Berino, the attraction in question is well known throughout Europe as one of the stars of the Royal Opera, Warsaw, Poland. With him is Tosier, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, another vocalist well known to the music lovers of two continents. Among other special added attractions will be Charles F. Seamon "The Narrow Feller."

The first half of the week the motion picture feature will be the illumination of Zane Grey's deservedly popular novel, "The Riders of the Dawn." The last half of the week will be characterized by an equally attractive picture.

DEATH OF MRS. SPENCE

Mrs. Bianca Verbeck Spence, the wife of Mr. Benjamin W. Spence of Norwood avenue, Newton Centre, who died after a short illness on August 9, was born in New York City, December 8, 1860.

She has been a resident here for the past 20 years and active in the work of the First Church of Newton Centre.

Funeral services were held at her late home on the Wednesday following her death.

Rev. Edward M. Noyes, pastor of the First Church, officiated.

MISS WING BURIED

Funeral services for Miss Alice E. Wing were held on Sunday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. DeWitt B. Brace, 103 Highland avenue, West Newton.

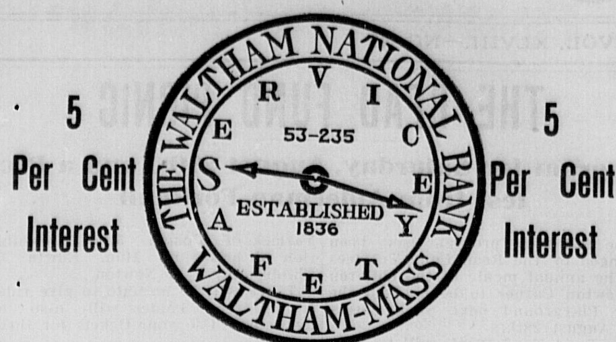

Miss Wing had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Philip W. Russell at Watermill, Long Island, and last week Wednesday went out rowing on the bay with their fourteen-year-old invalid son to whom she had long been devoted. They were caught in the current leading from through the inlet and were carried out to the surf and capsized. The overturned boat came ashore and on the following day the body of Miss Wing was recovered.

Miss Wing was the daughter of George and Mary Gould Wing, and was born in Davenport, Ia. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Brace and two brothers, Daniel G. Wing of Otis street and Thomas E. Wing of New York.

She spent a year in canteen work in France just preceding the armistice, where she won the admiration and love of all her associates on account of her efficiency and fairness. When she left Bordeaux, her service was recognized by the unique tribute of a loving cup from the French girls who had worked under her.

Miss Wing had many friends who will recognize in the manner of her going a fitting close to a life that was altogether spent in courageous and loving service.

SOCONY service is available to all who need its products—from quaint old Amherst, New Hampshire, to Sag Harbor, Long Island.

In some sections of New England three or four tank-wagon trips a year suffice to serve the sparsely settled rural districts.
In the cities, large quantities of Socony gasoline are required every week. But whatever the amount or wherever the need, Socony service is there to supply it.

And this unique service does not consist merely of a large number of filling stations. It begins back at the oil well and in the research laboratory. New methods are constantly being devised to maintain the Socony standard of quality—and improve it, if possible.

As a result of half a century of refining experience, Socony gasoline is today the standard of quality motor fuels. It is clean-burning and uniform in power and mileage. And because Socony is obtainable everywhere, you can adjust your carburetor permanently. This makes possible the "all-season" economy which regular Socony users enjoy.

EVENTS THAT MADE HISTORY

Anniversaries of Independence Declaration and Landing of the Pilgrims Are Both Near.

Our country approaches two notable dates in its history.

Philadelphians have already begun to talk about a great international celebration for 1926 to commemorate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Independence.

But next year comes a still more historic birthday. It will be 300 years next November since the pilgrims landed in America, writes "Girard" in the Philadelphia Press.

People refer constantly to them as the "Pilgrim Fathers," but as Roland Usher, in his book points out, "Fathers" is scarcely a justified title.

Of the 102 persons who came over in the Mayflower, only nine had reached forty years of age. But two of them were fifty.

Thirty-nine were children and there were 19 grownup women, one of whom was unmarried. As there were 25 bachelors on board the Mayflower, that lone maiden probably was never a wallflower.

The three most famous characters, Bradford, Allen and Miles Standish, were all young fellows, aged respectively thirty-one, twenty-one and thirty-six.

One of the most fatal epidemics on record smote that little colony and in four months 44 of the 102 pilgrims were dead. It was a disease akin to tuberculosis.

TIMBER SUPPLY RUNNING LOW

Government Planning Measures to Protect Supply on Hand and Encourage Future Growth.

A larger program of public acquisition of forests by the federal government, states and municipalities, and protection and perpetuation of forest growths on all privately owned lands which may not be used better for agriculture, is recommended in the annual report of the forester of the department of agriculture.

This policy is made necessary, the report said, by the diminishing timber supply. The rate of depletion of the forests is more than twice what is being produced by growth in a form serviceable for purposes other than firewood.

"Already the supplies of all the great Eastern centers of production are approaching exhaustion, with the exception of the South," the report said, "and even there most of the mills have not over ten to fifteen years' supply of virgin timber."

"The Southern pine is being withdrawn from many points as a competitive factor and its place taken by Western timbers. This inevitably results in added freight charges, which the consumer must pay."

The report suggested that the federal government work primarily through state agencies.

New Process for Drying Beets.

By the recently devised new process in sugar making, it is claimed that nearly 70 per cent of the water of beet roots can be extracted on the spot where they are grown. Thus dried, the material keeps indefinitely; it can be transported to places where fuel is plentiful, even over long distances; and it can be accumulated in stocks sufficient to keep factories running continuously, instead of requiring to be used up in a short season. The same process is suggested for treating fruits and vegetables designed for industrial-alcohol distilleries.

Shoe Mending at Home.

The calling-up of the village boot-maker or "cobbler" has seriously affected domestic convenience in many rural districts.

His importance is suddenly recognized, and his loss has, in several isolated midland hamlets, given a remarkable stimulus to shoe-mending at home.

Technical classes in sewing, heel and patching have been arranged, and country women are rapidly acquiring the art of cobbling. Lady Petre declares that it should be as natural to do this at home as to darn stockings. —London Chronicle.

Making Play Pay.

A Bay City sociologist urges all fathers to learn to play games of make-believe with their children, whatever the expenses of energy or time, saying it will in the end prove well worth while, and we can fully agree with this because of the excellent results we have already obtained pretending we are the sleeping child when Santa Claus comes, or the black bear that has holed up for the winter when the Indian comes hunting for him. —Detroit News.

Australia's Search for Oil.

While thoroughly testing Papua and German Guinea, with British assistance, for oil wells, Australia is also looking within her own borders. The prime minister, Mr. Hughes, has announced that the federal government will pay a bonus of $5,000 for the discovery of commercial oil in the commonwealth. Probably the discovery of oil in payable quantities in Great Britain has encouraged the Dominion government.

They Should Worry!

"I'm afraid raw sugar is going to be scarce."
"That will make no difference to us. We always use the cooked kind."
—Cleveland Press.

GARDEN NEWS

Cucumber, tomato, melon and potato vines should be sprayed frequently with Bordeaux mixture in order to control blights and diseases. August is the month when blight usually does its greatest damage. Many people feel that the potatoes are already infected with blight. This probably is not true because most of the potato trouble is due to dry weather and the work of potato lice and leaf hoppers. So far as reported, no phoma stem blight has made its appearance to date.

Using Up String Beans

Many home gardeners have more string beans than they care for. This is the time to can them for winter use, or else permit them to become dead ripe and use them as shell beans, or else permit them to dry and save them for seed or for baking purposes next winter.

This is one of the times in the year when beets are likely to be cheap enough to warrant canning them. The market should be carefully studied for other bargains as August is likely to be the bargain month.

Keep After Weeds

Home gardeners should be particularly careful at this time of the year in seeing to it that not a single weed is permitted to go to seed. It is easy to slight this and many gardeners do who keep their gardens in excellent condition until this period, when they permit stray weeds in rows or hills to blossom and produce seed. They produce such a great quantity of seeds that even though half a dozen plants are left in the garden, seeds enough are produced to cause a lot of trouble in succeeding years. Probably the best way to get rid of these large weeds is pull them out, permit them to dry thoroughly and then burn them in order to destroy the seed.

Saving Garden Seeds

Many of the home vegetable seeds may be saved at home for next year's planting. This is particularly true of lettuce, radish, beans and the like. One should see to it, however, that the seeds are harvested from plants that have made a quick, vigorous growth and are free from disease.

LARGE NEWTON LAND SALE

Through the office of Alvord Bros. the Emma G. Towne Estate of California has sold to Nelson J. Peabody five lots of land on Commonwealth avenue and Fuller street, the Braeburn Country Club, the total area is 51716 feet and the land is valued at about 20 cents a foot.

"How Can I Win, With This Chained to My Leg?"

Grant E. Hamilton of Judge.

In order to acquaint the public with the general telephone situation, and some of the reasons for delay in completing new installations—chief among which is the difficulty of getting the numerous kinds of necessary material—we have prepared a series of announcements of which this is the third.

New Telephone Equipment Scarce

We appreciate, and with deep sympathy, the feelings of a subscriber who has bought or leased a house in some section where, for the time being, we are without facilities, and who says to our commercial representative: "Why, you have poles and wires on the street and the house itself is wired. All you need to do is to connect us up."

We wish the solution were as simple as all that. There may be poles and wires, but every wire already assigned. There may be a cable, but not a spare circuit in the cable. There may be a spare circuit, but not another inch of available switchboard at the central office with which to connect that circuit. We have had new sections of switchboard delayed weeks in their operation because of the absence of such little accessories as ringing keys or relays.

The reason for this scarcity of telephone equipment is very simple. We couldn't maintain our usual ratio of advance construction during the war, because the government needed for war purposes the very things we needed for telephone purposes. Consequently our margin of reserve facilities was gradually absorbed by the demand.

We are short of copper wire, silk, rubber, clay, beeswax, glass, thread, porcelain, paper, paraffin, antimony, tin, shellac and other materials entering into the construction of telephone equipment because the whole world is short of these things or of material fabricated from them. Our engineers are searching the markets of the world for these things while other experts are endeavoring to develop satisfactory substitutes.

We are making progress in both directions, but it is necessarily slow because never has there been such a demand for service as at the present time. Incidentally, there has never, in a similar period, been such a fulfillment of demand.

We want to make clear to those awaiting telephone service that we realize the handicap under which they are laboring and are keenly desirous of removing it as soon as possible. We want them to understand, also, that building a telephone plant is not a matter of some poles and wire, but literally of hundreds of different kinds of material, raw or fabricated. Nevertheless the spirit of our people is not to set up this difficulty as an alibi, but rather as a challenge to their inventive genius and resourcefulness.

EDITORIAL

One of the biggest problems facing the taxpayers of this city in the very near future, is that of providing additional school accommodations for the rapidly increasing number of school children. Few of us realize the exact situation but the following facts may help to visualize it. From 1900 to 1910 the city built and equipped 9 new school buildings at a total cost of $1,197,350. During this period the school enrollment increased from 5436 to 6802. From 1910 to 1920, the city has not built a single school house and has only authorized the construction of one building (at Waban) not yet ready for occupancy. In this period the number of pupils has risen from 6802 to 8560. In other words while the number of pupils increased some 1400, the city erected 9 buildings to accommodate them, and when it increased over 1700, has made no attempt (other than the Waban school) to meet the situation. No wonder the school committee suggests a two million dollar outlay for new buildings. Both the High schools are congested to the limit, West Newton schools are overcrowded, the Newtonville schools are in a similar condition and Auburndale is rapidly approaching the point where it must have relief. Portable school buildings will help the situation somewhat, but we do not believe that Newton would approve of this scheme, except as a temporary expedient. Dividing the children into morning and afternoon classes is neither fair to the teachers nor to the pupils; as it lessens the school hours for the former and doubles them for the latter. Something should be done right away, for it takes many months to put up the kind of a school building Newton people demand, and even if the preliminary steps are taken this fall, it is doubtful if the needed buildings would be ready for the school year beginning September, 1921.

Recent developments concerning our state treasurer, the contest now going on over the Republican nomination for secretary of the commonwealth, added to the Burrell-Burrill mixup of last year, ought to make the people realize that the direct primary, so far as it relates to minor political offices is a dismal failure. It is a great pity that when the Legislature several years ago adopted an act to restore the former convention system Gov. McCall blocked its fulfillment by a veto. A strong effort should be made at the ensuing Legislature to return to some convention system, so far as minor state offices are concerned and eliminate our present unsatisfactory method of selecting state officials by a state wide canvass for votes.

Fifty years is a long period to look forward to, but it seems comparatively a short time, we assume to a public servant like Mr. Charles H. Stacy, who retires today from the post office at West Newton with that number of years to his credit. Originally appointed by President Grant, the fact that both Democratic as well as Republican presidents continued his commission every four years, testifies as no other evidence can do, that Mr. Stacy has been popular, able, and faithful in his devotion to the public service. We feel sure that in his retirement from active work, Mr. Stacy carries with him the cordial good will and the best wishes of his many friends throughout the entire city.

REGISTRATION FOR WOMEN

In view of the ratification by the Tennessee Legislature of the 19th amendment to the U. S. Constitution and the granting of suffrage to women, the Registrars of Voters announced that additional opportunity will be given between now and the State Primary on September 7, for those women who wish to register in time to vote at the Primary. Men and women can register at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, West Newton, between 8.30 A. M. and 12 M. and from 2 to 5 P. M. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week, on Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 30, and August 31 at the same times and place and on Wednesday, Sept. 1st, from 8.30 A. M. to 10 P. M. which will be the last opportunity to register before the Primary.

In addition there will be evening registration as follows—from 7.30 to 9 P. M., Friday, August 27, Taylor Block, Auburndale. Monday, August 29, Police Station, Newton and Tuesday, August 31, Bray Hall, Newton Centre. After the Primary ample opportunity will be given for registration for the election on November 2nd.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Well to suffer is divine; Pass the countersign, "Endure." Not to him who rashly dares, But to him who nobly bears, Is the victor's garland sure.

LET US REMEMBER.

A woman's hands should have as much care as her face, for they are fully as much in evidence. Do not use a stove-lid lifter or a stick of wood for a hammer; have a tool box in the kitchen where such things may be quickly found. Bruised nails and gouged fingers are painful and often stay with us for months.

There is no economy in using old or worn-out utensils; learn to keep up-to-date equipment in the kitchen. A workman is known by his tools.

Use small wooden spoons for stirring and avoid burns, as they never get hot in the dish over the heat.

Have a soap shaver, in which gather all pieces of unscented soap to use in the dishpan; this will be a saving of both soap and the hands.

Save steps by using a tray or a wire dish drainer in removing dishes from the dining table. One trip saved is worth the mental effort and many times the trips may be divided by ten. When standing for any purpose, such as ironing, if a stool is not convenient to use, fold a heavy rug to stand upon. The spring under the feet will make a great difference, taking the pressure off the tired feet.

Good sharp knives, a reliable can opener and a good knife sharpener will save the temper which is often ruffled by poor tools.

A bottle of kerosene should be kept near the sink, which may be rubbed after each washing with a cloth dampened in the coal oil; this will take off soil and clean the sink much quicker than any powder or soap will do.

A roll of soft absorbent paper is invaluable in the kitchen. It may be used to wipe up spots on table or floor, or to remove waste from dishes, thus saving in the dishwashing.

When food burns on, in a dish, do not scrape it, but put a teaspoon of soda and enough cold water to cover the bottom and let it simmer for an hour or two; then if there are any obstinate spots, rub with a piece of pumice stone, which will not leave bad scratches to roughen the surface.

There are nettles everywhere. But smooth, green grasses are more common still. The blue of heaven is larger than the cloud.

FOODS WITH MIXED FLOURS.

As rye flour is now on the "don't use" list, we must not use it as a substitute for flour. In many homes where rye is still found in quantities it should be used sparingly, as it will not be plentiful as long as it is used as food for the armies. In many of our war recipes we find whole wheat flour used as a wheat substitute, which it is not. Whole wheat flour used with barley flour to lessen the use of wheat is justified, but the use of whole wheat flour as a wheat substitute is not conforming to the rules of conservation.

Honey Drop Cakes.—Mix a half cupful of any sweet fat with a cupful of honey; add a half cupful of sour milk, a teaspoonful of soda, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, a half teaspoonful of cloves, a half cupful of raisins, and three-fourths of a cupful of barley and wheat flour, one beaten egg, all well mixed and baked in a moderate oven.

Corn Flour Chocolate Cake.—Take two ounces of grated chocolate, one-fourth of a cupful of shortening, one-half a cupful of boiling water poured over the chocolate, a cupful of sugar, one egg, well beaten, a half cupful each of corn flour and wheat flour, a half teaspoonful of soda, mixed with one-fourth of a cupful of sour milk.

Rice Bread.—Cook a cupful of rice in boiling water until tender, using five to six cupfuls of boiling water. The age of the rice will make a difference in the time of cooking; rice that is two or three years old taking a longer time to cook. Add two tablespoonfuls of sweet fat, a tablespoonful of sirup and a teaspoonful of salt to the hot rice, stir and cool; add a half cupful of home-made yeast or a yeast cake softened in three-fourths of a cupful of the rice water; add four cupfuls of flour, kneading it in gradually until it makes a very stiff dough, but the moisture in the rice will soften it so that when it rises it will be quite soft. Handle the dough quickly, shaping it into loaves and when risen bake (in three loaves) for about three-quarters of an hour.

Water will be needed in large quantities during hot weather.

is the first time I have gotten any since I left Olympia on the 6th of July and believe me I sure was glad to hear from everybody. We've just had an awful four days but I guess we are thru about the roughest part of the work. We've got the roughest assignment in the whole U. S. and believe me it is rough. Today we left the camp about six o'clock and started in to climb at once, and we climbed and kept on climbing and then climbed some more and still kept on. I can't give you in detail the roughness but for about a thousand feet it was up through timber and was almost perpendicular, then up the bed of a brook for about another thousand, then across elk meadow which wasn't so bad, then up a snow slide and then for about four hundred feet absolutely almost perpendicular and in many places it was and then on up steep place after steep place until we got up to over 5000 feet and then after this we started in to work.

We saw a great big bull elk which ran along ahead of us up the glacier which marks the last part of the climb. You wouldn't believe it, but the perpiration was just pouring off us and to add to difficulties we all had something to carry, and the mosquitoes which breed in the snow out here were rather bad. When we finally reached the top we found it just about as sharp as a knife and then we had to chain all the way down the other side into a big basin that is about 3500 feet high. From the top of the mountain we could see a big band of about 50 elk lying down in a little lake but we made so much noise chopping our way through the underbrush that they ran away before we could get very near. After setting a couple of corner stones and going to all kinds of trouble to get around bluffs, etc., finally climbed a high ridge which we thought would lead us to the highest peak in the neighborhood where we had to set a cornerstone, but much to our disgust we found it broke off and then we had to come down into the elk basin and climb all the way up and believe me I was about dead. I couldn't spit, talk or anything else as we hadn't had any water for a long time but when we reached the top we ate snow but it doesn't quench your thirst much. At one part of a ridge we could look down and see a sheer drop of about 2000 feet and it sure made me feel kind of dizzy. In another direction we could see all kinds of glaciers in the higher mountains and in every direction there was nothing but mountains. The day before we had discovered a wonderful little lake of about six acres which probably hadn't been seen by three people in the U. S. It makes you feel kind of funny to know that you are probably the first white man to ever see these places. Almost nobody ever leaves the river bottom and there aren't a dozen people that go up that year at the most. The country has never been surveyed and is absolutely the real thing; never timbered or burnt by forest fires but everything is as it has always been.

Well to get back to my story of today's trip, we finally got the corner set at about 6:15 P. M. and then we had the question of getting back to camp and believe me it was rather dubious as we were a long ways from where we came up and didn't know how to get down, but at last we managed to get down the first bluff and then went down a glacier and there we drank of about the best water I think I ever had, ice-cold running right out of the snow. Then we hit rocks and snow slides and all kinds of obstacles but kept on going and going and finally reached camp at 8:30. You wouldn't believe it possible the climbs the fellows here make unless you could see them. There aren't many people that could have made the climb and gotten back in a day let alone do eight hours work on top of it. The fellows will come down about like a flying machine catching on rocks or bushes with one hand just long enough to steady themselves for another jump or slide and all the time carrying an instrument or an axe or something. The first day out I was scared stiff but I'm getting used to it now and I guess that it is safer than trying to go slow as you would never get anywhere and would get hurt any way if you were going to, but don't worry as I am all right and you can get used to anything. It is about 12 o'clock now and Bill is writing letters with me, but we don't mind as we are getting a day off tomorrow as everyone is more or less tired after four days of from 12 to 14 hours a day.

I would write to everyone separately if I could but I can't get a little sleep tonight and the letters have got to be ready by morning as the packer goes out early. I sure am having a great time and seeing and doing so much that I don't believe I will realize half of it until I get home.

I don't know whether I told you before or not but we are 102 miles from the nearest railroad.

I got my first elk awhile back when I was coming in with the pack train and believe me it was a whooper. I guess it weighed over twelve hundred easy as it took three horses to get it to camp and the packer and I could just barely get one hind quarter up high enough to get it on a horse. I was riding ahead of the pack train and saw some distance away behind a big log. I jumped down from the horse I was riding and ran across a little glade in front and I fired and got it right through the heart and believe me that old gun did a good job. The elk never moved again.

But the job of butchering was wicked, the thing was so big. We cut off his legs and feet, which were much bigger than a cow's, chopped off his head and neck, and his back bone which was all a man could lift and threw them away and then cut him up in four pieces. We put two ox one horse and they were so heavy they lay down and couldn't get up. They make a deer look like a flea. Wish you could get one.

Love,
Wentworth.

POSTMASTER RETIRED

Mr. Charles H. Stacy Completes 47 Years Service in Charge of West Newton Office

Mr. Charles H. Stacy, who has served the West Newton district of this city most faithfully as postmaster of the West Newton station, retires today under a recent law of Congress, on account of age limit. Mr. Stacy was a clerk for two or three years under the former postmaster John H. Bixby, and on August 20th, 1872 was appointed postmaster by President Grant and received successive reappointments under both Republican and Democratic presidents until the West Newton office was first absorbed into a greater Newton postoffice and subsequently taken over into the Boston postal district, serving as superintendent under those consolidations. Mr. Stacy has run a newstand in connection with the postoffice for many years and has sold the GRAPHIC ever since it was first published, over 40 years ago.

franchisement of their privilege of attending the READ FUND PICNIC, of which they, their parents and grandparents (as children) have enjoyed for more than thirty years to my personal knowledge; I have attended most of these pleasant occasions, and can speak from personal knowledge of the great good and pleasure Mr. CHARLES A. READ, in his wisdom has given to thousands of children from the homes, of which I believe was his intention and thought; which now on a technical construction of a word, they are to be deprived without a question of right or wrong.

We are at this time advocating strongly in many ways the COMMUNITY-SPIRIT; and we are likewise teaching DEMOCRACY; (which surmounts the schools fought for) this decision of yours certainly cannot be a true exemplification of either; and who shall say that the straight line drawn in the wisdom of technical construction is that of Charles A. Read; what we want is the broad and liberal construction which have been placed upon them these many years, by good and true men of the past.

You have included the Lincoln School in the privileged class, then have drawn a line excluding those living on Pearl street, etc.

Are the free scientific lectures of the Read-Fund for Newton Corner also restricted to this described territory? And the same question may apply for the donation to the Library at Newton Corner.

The only other distribution of these funds is to poor widows, does not come under this present restrictive clause as enunciated, because it says "IN ANY PART OF NEWTON"; and all these to be expended annually.

Is the BURR-PLAY-GROUND to be so restricted? WHY-NOT?

Very truly yours,
REUBEN FORKNALL.

NASON—MILET

The wedding of Mr. Leonard Hastings Nason of Woodland road, Auburndale and Miss Lucia Milet, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Milet of Cannellito took place last week Thursday noon at the home of the bride.

The double ring service, was performed by Rev. Bertram V. Bozlin of Gloucester, and came at the same hour as the marriage of Dr. and Mrs. Milet, which was solemnized just 29 years ago that day in Rockland. Rev. Mr. Bozlin, the officiating clergyman, was formerly of East Bridgewater, and is an intimate friend of the Milet family. He is now pastor of the Unitarian Church in Gloucester.

Early fall flowers of yellow, with a background of green boughs and asparagus ferns, were used as the effective decorations for the living room, where the ceremony was performed. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowning in a traveling suit of blue serge. Her hair was of purple velvet and her bridal bouquet was of white roses, lilies of the valley and lily-of-the-valley.

The couple was unattended. During the reception the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Milet, and the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. H. Nason, assisted in receiving. Guests were present from Boston, Idaho, this city and surrounding towns.

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Nason left on a wedding trip, which they will enjoy by auto through Vermont and New Hampshire, and possibly Canada. Upon —Mr. Horace M. Walton, Supt. of Music in the public schools and his brother, Mr. George Walton of New York formerly of this town are in California for a month.

—Dr. J. W. Pomfret, who has been spending the summer in New Hampshire, will open his dental office in the remodeled Dennison Block, Newtonville square, about Sept. 15. advt.
—Hon. John A. Fennel, for many years the treasurer and superintendent of the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn Railroad, has been elected president of the company to succeed the late Col. Melvin O. Adams.
—Mr. Charles B. Somers of Lowell avenue and Mr. Frank Kellen of Eliot avenue, West Newton, arrived last Monday on an auto trip at a small village called Manchester, Me. They settled all their difficulties on the way down but after the first fishing trip Mr. Kellen holds a grievance against Mr. Somers on account of his having succeeded in landing the largest fish of the season from a lake near by. The small-mouth black bass was finally landed after about 15 minutes sportsmanship and weighing 7½ pounds, before it was dressed.
—Mr. Somers ought to present for publication a picture of this wonderful catch to authenticate his letter, but this will probably be forth coming on his arrival home at the end of his vacation. His friends extend congratulations and are waiting to see if his partner can go him one better.

WHERE EAST AND WEST MEET

Young Chinese Girls in San Francisco Learning Language and Customs of the Country.

Young Chinese girls in San Francisco's Chinatown offer the most striking examples of the meeting of the East and West. Physically and mentally they show the two opposite influences under which they live, says the Christian Science Monitor. Their conversation is a curious mixture of English and Chinese. In their homes they speak Chinese, but by the time they reach fifteen or sixteen they know English better than their mother tongue.

Among the families who can afford to do so, the girls are sent to some teacher of Chinese to be taught to read and write their mother tongue, outside of school hours. For the fathers and the mothers have a wistful hope of returning some day to China, and it would never do if the children were instructed only in a foreign tongue.

The life of a Chinese girl is not altogether simple. In the poorer and more ignorant families the parents are often filled with superstition and prejudice against the education of women. In spite of the many obstacles, however, they usually manage to get in touch with some of the advantages offered in their quarters, being aided by social settlement workers of Chinatown.

REMINISCENT OF OTHER DAYS

Century-Old Building in Providence, Rhode Island, Is a Survival of Napoleonic Era.

A recent incident in Providence, Rhode Island, calls attention to an old landmark reminiscent of Napoleon and his construction of the Madeleine in Paris. Napoleon's building set a little fashion in America, and several structures more or less like it were built in different cities. The Arcade building, in Providence, is the only one of them left. Erected about 1820, it became an Ionic temple, that was also a center of retail trade, and its pillars remain today the largest monoliths in the country, except those which have been raised for the growing Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in New York. The record tells how they were cut by hand, in the town of Johnston, and dragged to Providence on sleds, nearly a hundred years ago. It tells also that the dedication of the building was a grand public affair, and that the temple was long held to be one of the architectural wonders of the United States. It is not of such commercial importance as it used to be, but one may be glad that the city has not lost such a reminder of the Napoleonic era.

Hops.

Hops are grown in a number of states. In the central and northern part of the state of New York many farmers make a specialty of their growth. The yield is from 700 to 800 pounds the acre in that state, but on the Pacific coast, where most of the hops consumed here are grown, the yield is between 1,000 and 2,000 pounds per acre. Oregon produces more hops than any other state in the Union. By far the greater part of the hops raised have been consumed in the breweries of the country, but they are also used in pharmaceutical preparations. The present one-half of 1 per cent beer contains hops, but not in such large quantities as in beers of the larger alcoholic content. And then it is not likely that the kind of beer permitted under the prohibitory law will appeal largely to the drinkers of old-time beer. It seems certain that the demand for hops will fall off greatly.

Coal Gas as Automobile Fuel.

In the course of the world war many motor vehicles were operated in England with coal gas because of the scarcity of gasoline. The gas was contained in collapsible bags made of rubberized balloon fabric. At present, however, compressed gas in steel cylinders is being tried. It is stated that the gas is forced in to pressures as high as 2,250 pounds per square inch. The cost of compression is stated to vary between 40 and 75 cents per 1,000 cubic feet of free gas, and the cost as fuel in the engine is equivalent to a cost of 12 cents per gallon on the liquid fuel replaced.—Scientific American.

Detested Cowardice.

Cecil is not particularly pugnacious, but he detested cowardice in any one, and, noting George's aversion to games in which he might get hurt, he determined to initiate him. The teacher caught him holding George down, and he was asked to explain.

"Well," he answered, "I dared George to fight, and he ran; so I'm holding him till I can argue some courage into him; then we are going to have a scrap."

What He Got for His Dollar.

"Ever answer any of those coal saving advertisements?"

"Answered 'em all, I guess. But I only got one recipe that had any merit."

"What was that?"

"It read: 'Coal may be made to last longer by keeping it away from the stoves and furnace.'—Boston Transcript.

Sure Thing.

"I'll bet," said Mr. Growcher, "the government would have all the money it needs in a hundred years if the conscience fund could get hold of all that's coming to it."

HERE TO REPRESENT PERU

Frederico A. Pezet Is the First Ambassador From That Country in the United States.

Peru has been added to the list of Latin-American states maintaining embassies in Washington, states the New York Tribune. The first ambassador, Frederico A. Pezet, has arrived in this country and the state department seems inclined to annul for his benefit its famous Costa Rican "house rule," to the effect that no diplomatic recognition can be given to a Latin-American government coming into power through revolution. President Leguia assumed control in Lima by force last year and exiled his predecessor, doing so on the ground that he has been elected president by the people for a term to begin a few months later and that the administration in office was planning to count him out.

Mr. Pezet will be welcomed as the representative of Peru, a state which has always had the most friendly relations with the United States. He served here formerly both as first secretary of legation and as minister. He knows this country thoroughly, speaks English as well as he does Spanish and enjoys in an exceptional degree the esteem of government and other circles in Washington, in which he has long been at home.

SEEK FOR TRADE IN ARCTIC

Boston Capitalists Form Organization
Something Like the Famous Hudson's Bay Company.

Word has just come out of the North of a rival to the Hudson's Bay company that has sprung up. It is an organization backed by Boston interests and its aim is to get a share of the trade that the "Ancient and Honorable Association of Adventurers" has monopolized for over a century. Last spring Capt. Louis Lane of Nome, Alaska, was sent into the Arctic to establish a string of 28 trading posts for the Boston body.

The expedition went into the North via Calgary, Alberta, with eight carloads of goods, of an estimated value of $240,000. In addition to this they sent in a river power boat for operation on the Mackenzie river. The vessel was sent in sections and assembled on the big river. The party worked slowly down the river, canvassing and exploring among the tribes and only reached Fort Macpherson when winter came. They will stay there until spring opens the river and allows them to proceed further. The company intends locating its posts by the pioneering party, and will then keep them supplied by means of ships from Nome during the short summer.

Reasonable Expectation.

"Ah, how do you do, sir?" saluted the suave salesman of enlarged crayon portraits, as the householder opened the door. "I am offering—My stars! Is that revolver loaded?"

"I reckon," replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, "leastways, 'twas, the last time I noticed."

"Heavens and earth, man! What do you suppose will happen if you permit that little child to continue to amuse himself with the weapon?"

"He'll probably break the hammer off'n it on one of the other children's heads. I've told 'em a time or two to quit letting him have it, but you know how children is."—Kansas City Star.

Schooldays.

In a physiology recitation during a discussion of the organs of breathing, a sixth grade girl, when asked what the diaphragm was, replied: "It is something that if we didn't have we'd go all out of shape when we breathed."

The teacher in assigning a lesson in the fifth grade geography ended by saying: "The question need not be answered by written answer; the answers must be in your head." There was a general laugh when a boy raised his hand and asked, "Must I hand it in?"

Girl Mines Coal.

Pittsburgh lays claim to the only girl coal miner in America and probably in the world. Miss Ricka Ott is her name and she is just twenty-one years old and very attractive. But she is a coal miner, and is proud of it. In addition, she is a coal operator, truck driver, farmer and general "jack of all trades." Back in the hills of Mount Oliver, a suburb, she was discovered merrily wheeling her black diamonds from the little pit in the hill-side.

Filipinos Take to Athletics.

Since our soldiers in the early days of American occupation held their first athletic contest in the Philippines the natives of the islands have taken an active interest in many forms of athletics and sports popular in the western world. It was not, however, until rivalry between towns and provinces was created that a deep general interest in every form of sport was developed. The majority of the people considering this indulgence a useless waste of energy.

Ludendorff and the Germans.
Representative Fess was talking about Ludendorff's memoirs.

"Ludendorff's present day attitude toward the German people and the German people's attitude toward him are pretty clearly shown in this work," he said. "It reminds one of the lawyer."

"I'm sorry I couldn't do more for you," the lawyer said to his client.

"Don't mention it," said the client.

COX REFUSES OWN MEDICINE

Asheville (N. C. Times)
Its three most prominent features are an unconditional surrender to Woodrow Wilson on his visionary misstatements of fact, and the adoption of the oldtime Colonel James Bowie method of launching a campaign with strident shouts, clenched fists, table pounding and reckless charges. Nowhere in his speech is there anything of the quiet dignity and fine restraint that characterize the acceptance address of Senator Harding.

In some of his statements, Mr. Cox is so recklessly at variance with the facts as to throw suspicion upon either his intelligence or his veracity.

Take an instance. Dwelling upon the reference to the late war in the Republican platform, he says: "What America did needs no reiteration here. It is known of all men. History will acclaim it—poets will find it an inspiration throughout the ages. And yet there is not a line in the Republican platform that breathes an emotion of pride, or recites our national achievement."

Now let us see how near this comes to the truth. In the recent war we, in association with the Allies, won a great victory, and all the world knows that our army and navy were the chief winners of that victory, and what does the Republican platform say by way of "emotion and pride" or "recital of achievement"? Let it speak for itself.

"We hold in imperishable remembrance the valor and the patriotism of the soldiers and sailors of America who fought in the great war for human liberty. We pledge ourselves to discharge to the fullest the obligations which a grateful nation justly should fulfill, in appreciation of the services rendered by its defenders on sea and on land."

Does not this look a little like "breathing some emotion of pride," and "reciting some national achievement"? What does Mr. Cox mean by such recklessness of statement? Does he hope to fool the American people by misstating the open declarations of the Republican party on the war? And while Mr. Cox is on the subject of the war and its rewards and achievements, let us remind him that the files of his two newspapers, along about the year 1916, contain numbers of editorials reeking with pro-Germanism which he will be called upon to explain and justify, if he can.

The Democrats are said to be looking for a campaign song. Something along the lines of the following might serve them:
The Double Cross! The Double Cross! Upon my breast I wear it, I'm sometimes Dry and sometimes Wet, and sometimes both, I swear it.
I am for Suffrage or against—you'll not know what I'm thinking.
I am for Wilson when I talk, but Murphy knows I'm winking!

SIRUP FROM GRAPE JUICE

Plan Proposed by Experts of the University of California Would Seem to Solve Problem.

To meet the ban on the manufacture of wine in the great grape-raising areas the agricultural college of the University of California has developed a practical method of converting grape juice into excellent sirup. It is the belief, says the Scientific American, that converting grapes into sirup instead of wine will double the value of the fruit. The estimated value of the crop of 250,000 tons of wine grapes, grown annually, is four million dollars; if the crop is made into sirup, it should have a value of eight million dollars.

While the experts at the agricultural college have been working on the problem, an independent chemist and grape expert has succeeded in producing a sirup from grapes that meets all the requirements of a commercial product. According to figures that he submits, his method will produce sirup at a cost that is slightly lower than that of the other method.

One of the interesting sides of the question is the plan recommended by the university that all grape growers, wineries and sugar factories co-operate next year in the interests of all those industries. It proposes that the wineries purchase the grapes of the vintage of 1919, and extract and store the estimated fifty million gallons of juice, that the larger sugar factories receive the juice and concentrate it, and that they ship the sirup to the canneries for use in 1920.

The university has discovered a simple and inexpensive process of treating the juice that will prevent fermentation for a year, if necessary. The chemists say that the sirup can be used in place of sugar in preserving some of the fruits, and can be mixed with sugar in preserving others.

HAD THE PORTER GUESSING

Colored Man Quite Unable to Understand Clergyman's Objection to Presence of Empty Flask.

Rev. William H. Book, pastor of the Tabernacle Christian church at Columbus, recently held a revival meeting at Huntington, W. Va. He lived at a Huntington hotel and one day, when hanging a coat in the closet of his room he found an empty whisky bottle on the closet floor. Apparently the quart bottle had been there for some time, but it had not been discovered and the minister did not wish it found immediately after he vacated the room. So he called a porter and asked that the bottle be removed.

"Somebody might find the bottle in there just after I left town," Mr. Book explained, "and it would reflect on me. I don't want anybody to think I placed that bottle in there or that I had anything to do with it."

The porter nodded his head, picked up the bottle and studied the label on it. Apparently he was sorely puzzled to know why the minister would not claim ownership or at least relationship with the empty container. At length his bewilderment was expressed in speech.

"Why, boss," he exclaimed, "that's the best brand made."—Indianapolis News.

Counteracting Submarine.

The warship of the present day is a compromise between what we deem best and what we deem essential. The torpedo-proof bottom has become essential; therefore we must give up guns or armor or speed or something else in order to get it. On the other hand it is probable that battleships and battle cruisers will not hereafter be supplied with torpedoes. Since actions are now fought at enormous ranges, and since vessels can be sunk by gunfire alone, torpedoes on big-gun ships are now useless. Omitting the torpedo tube will save little weight, but it will leave space for more ammunition. A writer suggests that high-speed rams with bows of proper shape and requisite strength to sink under-water craft will again come into use.

Upward Movement in England.

The formation, recently announced, of the Village Clubs association marks a memorable departure in English village life. It arose out of a discussion of the Agricultural club. The main idea of the association is to help village people to conduct, by themselves and for themselves, centers of amusement and recreation. They are to supply themselves with what they want, rather than with what other people think they ought to have; the association helping them, but not dictating in any way. This may well be the seed of a very big movement, and is a noteworthy sign of the times.

Couldn't Blame Him for That.

The attorney for the defense was trying his best to discredit the testimony of a colored witness in a recent Marion county juvenile court case.

"Didn't I defend you in a case in this court last May, Sam?" he demanded.
Before the witness had a chance to reply to the question the attorney for the state said, "We grant it, but you don't hold that against him, do you?"

Carlyle's Prophecy.

America, too, will have to strain its energies, crack its sinews and all but break its heart, as the rest of us have had to do, in a thousandfold wrestle with the pythons and mud-demons, before it can become a habitation for the gods.—Carlyle.

Americans have for generations spent millions of dollars a year in Italy for cream of tartar, a household necessity which the grape regions of the United States can well supply.

THE A B C OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

1. What is the League of Nations?
A. A union of the strongest civilized nations formed at the conclusion of the great war.

2. What is its object?
A. First, to promote the Peace of the World by agreeing not to resort to war. Second, to deal openly with each other, not by secret treaties. Third, to improve international law. Fourth, to co-operate in all matters of common concern.

3. Does it presume to end war?
A. No more than any government can end crime. It claims to reduce the liability of war.

4. What will be done to any nation that makes war?
A. It will be boycotted and otherwise penalized.

5. How else will the probability of war be lessened?
A. By voluntary, mutual and proportionate disarmament; by exchanging military information, by providing for arbitration, by protecting each nation's territorial integrity and by educating public opinion to see the folly of war.

6. What else does the League propose to do for Mankind?
A. (1) Secure fair treatment for labor,

(2) suppress the White Slave Traffic, the sale of dangerous Drugs, and the traffic in War Munitions,

(3) control and prevent Disease, (4) promote the work of the Red Cross, and

(5) establish International Bureaus for other Causes that concern the human race.

7. Who are to be Charter Members of the League?
A. The United States of America, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, British Empire, Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, India, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, France, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Hedjaz, Honduras, Italy, Japan, Liberia, Nicaragua, Panama, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Serbia, Siam, Uruguay, and the following states which are invited to accede to the covenant: Argentine Republic, Chili, Colombia, Denmark, Netherlands, Norway, Paraguay, Persia, Salvador, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Venezuela.

8. What other nations may join?
A. Any self-governing State which will agree to the rules of the League, provided the League accepts it.

9. What Agencies will the League have?
A. (1) An Assembly, composed of representatives of all the member Nations,

(2) a Council of Nine,

(3) a Secretary-General,

(4) a Mandatory Commission, to look after colonies, etc.,

(5) a Permanent Commission, for military questions,

(6) various International Bureaus; such as the Postal Union, etc.,

(7) Mandatories.

10. What is a Mandatory?
A. Some one nation designated by the League to attend to the welfare of "backward peoples residing in colonies of the Central Empires, or in territories taken from them." This is to be a "sacred trust," and in selecting a mandatory the wishes of the people of the area in question shall be the principal consideration.

11. Does the League mean a Super-nation?
A. No. It interferes in no way with any Nation's Sovereignty, except to limit its power to attack other nations.

12. Can any Nation withdraw when it wishes?
A. Yes. The League is Advisory and Co-operative, not coercive.

13. Does the League put Peace above Justice and National Honor?
A. No. It puts Reason before Violence.

14. Does not the League take away the Constitutional right of Congress to declare war?
A. No. The League can advise war; Congress alone can declare war.

15. Does it destroy the Monroe Doctrine?
A. Exactly the contrary. For the first time in history the other nations recognize the Monroe Doctrine; and extend it to all the world.

16. Does it not interfere with Treaty Making Powers of the United States?
A. No. Treaty we please.

17. Would we have had the Great War if we had had this League?
A. No. That War cost the world over 7,000,000 lives and 200,000,000,000 dollars.

18. Of what importance is the League?
A. It is the greatest deed of mankind in the history of the world.

19. Has not anyone a right to object to the League?
A. Yes. This is a free country. Anyone has a right to any opinion he chooses.

20. Why is the League so bitterly opposed by a few?
A. Because, unfortunately, any Treaty or League must be made by the President, and a President is chosen by a political party and many members of the opposite Party think they must decry whatever he does.

TWO MEN HURT

Two men were injured, one seriously, when a United States army supply truck from the Commonwealth armory, Allston, while crossing the electric car tracks on Commonwealth avenue, opposite Central street, Auburndale, Saturday afternoon, was struck by an electric car which approached from the rear. The force of the impact drove the truck across the road and into a tree.

John Cotter and Martin Cooney, workmen at the armory, who were riding on the rear of the truck, were thrown several feet when the machine crashed into the tree. Both were taken to the Newton Hospital in a police ambulance by Patrolmen Cullens and Reeves of Auburndale, where Cooney was placed on the danger list with a fractured left ankle and lacerations of the thigh and back. Cotter sustained a fracture of a rib and lacerated forehead.

The truck accompanied a camping party of state guards from the armory in charge of Capt. Hanniman, including 50 cavalrymen, which started for Sudbury in the afternoon. According to the police, the truck attempted to cross from the left side of Commonwealth avenue, which in this section is devoted to automobile traffic, to the right side, designated for horseback riding, in order to join the cavalrymen there.

As the machine crossed the tracks, west-bound, an electric car in charge of Motorman Thomas Martin, also west-bound, crashed into it, forcing it into the tree.

NEW BUSINESS SCHOOL

The Copley Business Institute, Inc., at 25 Huntington avenue, Copley square, Boston, is a business and secretarial school established and managed by Newton men.

A modern curriculum adapted to modern business requirements comprises Secretarial Course, Stenographic Course, Teachers' Course, Special Course and General Business Course, while provision is made for tutoring where that is desired.

The institute offers a special feature the direct personal instruction of its principal, Mr. Harry K. Good. Mr. Good taught for fourteen years in the Bryant and Stratton School and up to the present time has been in charge of the Shorthand Department of the Northeastern College Evening School.

Every student in the courses in the new institute thus receive his immediate personal attention and can make correspondingly rapid progress. The location of the Institute on Copley square is central to transportation lines to all points.

A brief outline of the courses is given in the preliminary folder which will be mailed on request.

DEATH OF FORMER RESIDENT

A cablegram received here announces the death of J. H. Wheelock, formerly head of the house of J. H. Wheelock & Co., foreign wool buyers and importers, while on his way to England. This was his 131st voyage across the ocean. Mr. Wheelock was born on January 5, 1844, at Woonsocket, R. I., and made his first connection with the wool manufacturing industry in a mill in that town. Twenty-four years ago, he organized, with Lewis Balch and Frank R. Pratt, the firm of J. H. Wheelock & Co. He retired about three years ago, but the business was continued under his name. Mr. Wheelock began his active career in Boston as a buyer for Eugene R. Knapp, operating in London and Australia, later going into the commission business and making frequent trips to the London wool sales. He was known here and abroad and was recognized as an authority on Australian wool. He had made his home in recent years in England, where a widow survives him. Their home is in Brighton. A brother and sister in New England also survive him.

Mr. Wheelock was a resident of Newton for many years, residing in the house he built at the corner of Washington street and Hunnewell avenue, Newton.

MRS. POOR DEAD

Mrs. Abigail C. Poor died on Wednesday in West Newton, where she had made her home with her son, Harris O. Poor, at 100 Valentine street. She was the widow of John O. Poor, who long was prominently identified with the leather trade in Boston and was formerly connected with his father in the firm of Henry Poor & Sons. Following the death of the elder Mr. Poor, the business was continued by his sons. John O. Poor died ten years ago. Mrs. Poor was born in Peabody and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harris of that town, where she lived until her marriage to Mr. Poor. Mrs. Poor after that lived in Boston or its vicinity. She is survived by her son, Harris O. Poor, and by a sister, Mrs. Ellen (Harris) Rayner of Cambridge, who is eighty-five years of age.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

IS DEAD, ANYHOW

The Representative chronicles the doings of subscribers and non-subscribers alike but we would rather write the obituary of a non-subscriber than anything else. A man who will live in a town year after year without subscribing for the home newspaper is a dead one anyway.—Fox Lake (Wis.) Representative.

NEWTON PLAYGROUNDS

Field Days This Week Show the Excellent work Being Done in This City

Exhibition of the work done on the various Newton playgrounds during the present summer, were held on Wednesday and Thursday of this week at West Newton and Newton Centre on Wednesday and at Cabot Park and Upper Falls yesterday. There was a good attendance of children and parents and it was a gala day for the little ones especially.

At West Newton, children were present from the Auburndale, Eden avenue and Horace Mann playgrounds, as well as from West Newton Common. At Newton Centre, the exhibition was by the Newton Centre, Newton Highlands and Thompsonville children. At Cabot Park, children came from Boyd, Stearns and Allison playgrounds and Upper Falls, also included children from the Lower Falls.

The program at each playground was similar and included sports and games for the children, exhibitions of Mother Craft and folk dancing by the girls. There were tables at each playground on which were exhibits of the occupational work done by the children during the summer and included basketry, embroidery, etc.

Mayor Childs gave one of his felicitous little talks at each of the playgrounds reminding the children that they went to school to get a sound mind, to church, to get a sound character and came to the playground to get a sound body, all of which were necessary to make them good Americans. On the playground they learned to play fair, to be a good loser and the value of team work.

The Health Pageant, which has been given at other playgrounds the past two weeks was given at the Newton Centre, Cabot Park and Upper Falls, while at West Newton, a special Health pageant was arranged on similar lines.

The prizes were presented at West Newton and Newton Centre by Mr. Thomas J. Lyons, a member of the Playground Commission.

Diplomas for work in Mother Craft were presented to a large number of girls who had passed the tests required by the National Association of Women's Clubs. This part of the work of the Playground has been under the direction of Mrs. Derby and Mrs. Williams, and is sponsored by the Newton Welfare Bureau.

An automobile load of disabled veterans from the Parker Hill Hospital were guests at the West Newton playground and were presented with a blanket, the worsted squares of which had been woven during the summer by the girls at that playground.

At West Newton, Mr. B. F. Severy was in charge of the boys' activities, Miss Anna M. Dean, of the girls', with these assistants, Misses Mary Daboll, Lillian Swartz, Elizabeth J. King, Esther Beckwith and Dante J. Friedman.

At Newton Centre, Mr. G. W. Brainerd was in charge of the boys, Miss Margaret S. Gould, of the girls, assisted by the Misses Mabel Gibbons, Alice Belger, Rufus H. Bond and Francis Slayter.

At Cabot Park, Mr. J. B. Dacey was in charge of the boys, Miss Dorothy Leach, of the girls, assisted by Mrs. Ragna Hovgaard, the Misses Ethel Holsten, Veronica F. Barry, Mary Curley, Lewis S. Harris, Frank L. Caton and William J. Dawson.

At Upper Falls, Mr. Joseph D. Meredith was in charge of the boys, Miss Madeline Everett of the girls, assisted by Misses Catherine O'Hara, Katherine Slayter, D. A. Hiscoc and Edward I. Mullen.

STORE SYSTEM AND METHOD

Prof. Paul W. Ivey, of the University of Nebraska, in a series of articles on the Modern Developments in Retailing says that "the aim of instruction in salesmanship is to develop satisfactory service for the public as well as to bring greater profit to both salesman and store as a result of higher efficiency." In this article Prof. Ivey refers to a list of books which it would be well for business men to peruse. Among those given the following are available in the Newton Free Library.

Blackford. Analyzing character. BLA-B564
Cody. How to deal with human nature in business. HK-C64
Fisk. Retail selling. HKL-F54
Hollingsworth. Advertising and selling. HKA-H72
Leichter. Successful selling. HKH-L53
Mantegazza. Physiognomy and expression. BJR-M31
Marden. Selling things. HKH-M33
Maxwell. Salesmanship. HKH-M45
Moody. Men who sell things. HKH-M77
Scott. Influencing men in business. HK-S43
Sheldon. The art of selling. HKH-S54

Taylor. What a salesman should know. HKH-T21
Whitehead. Principles of salesmanship. HKH-W58
Probably Prof. Ivey was a little diffident about mentioning his own recent book which is titled "Elements of retail salesmanship" (HKH-194). In the introduction of this he states: "Until recently retail stores have not seen the wisdom or the necessity of systematically and scientifically training their salespeople in selling goods. With the widening scope of mail order business and the increasing competition between towns due to better transportation facilities, methods of selling goods are receiving attention that a few years ago would have seemed misplaced. Selling service has now become as important as selling goods." There are a number of books of recent date in the library's collection which might be added to this list.

Kleiser. How to sell through speech. HKH-K67
Barrett. How to sell more books. HKH-B27
Douglass. Merchandizing. HK-D74
Douglass. Traveling salesmanship. HKH-D74
Frederick. Modern salesmanagement. HKH-F87
Maxwell. Training of a salesman. HKH-M45
Norton. Textbook of retail selling. HKH-N82
Opdycke. Advertising and selling practice. HKA-O61

Early Tomatoes

It is observed throughout the county that those home gardeners and commercial gardeners who trained their tomatoes to one or two stems, keeping cut all laterals, have been obtaining the earliest tomatoes, and a lot of them. It is true that a lot of these people will not get quite as many tomatoes from their vines as their neighbors who did not train to one or two stems. On the other hand they are getting better quality tomatoes, larger ones, getting them early, and getting more early tomatoes.

Potato Lice

Potatoes in hundreds of home gardens have died during the last few days. People have laid the trouble to the dry weather. It has been partly due to this, but almost entirely due to the potato aphid or lice. If one will look under the surface of the leaves they will be found to be infected with millions of these little green aphids. The aphids suck the juice from between the upper and lower surfaces of the leaf, and where they are numerous kill the plant in short time. If one's vines are not too far gone, they can probably be saved by using Black Leaf 40 about double strength.

Save Fertilizers for the Garden
It is hoped that many of the home gardeners who started in to save their garbage and other debris about the place, which was not infested with corn borers or likely to be, are keeping up the good work. The continual application of home garbage to the home garden is bound in course of time to tremendously enrich the soil. This should be buried 6 or 8 inches.

Care of Beans

A great quantity of string beans and shell beans have gone by, that is a larger quantity was planted than was needed for home consumption or could be canned for winter use. These beans make excellent baked beans for this fall and winter if properly cared for. One should not let the pods stay on the vines long after they become dry. The reason for this is that they will mildew. Oftentimes the beans inside become spoiled or even start to sprout. All home gardeners should take the pods as soon as they become dry and place them upon a sheet in the sun or somewhere else where they will thoroughly dry out. They can then be placed in a bag and contents of bag pounded, thus shelling the beans out of the pods.

Next week's story will discuss the care of these beans, especially looking to the killing of the bean weevils.

Keep Late Root Crops Growing
It is very important to keep late planted beets, carrots, turnips, and the like growing rapidly. This is accomplished by ample plant food, and constant cultivation, along with careful thinning.

Can Beets Now

To those who are hoping to have winter beets and have not already canned beets for winter use, it is suggested that they probably are as cheap at present as they are likely to be on the open market. They can be purchased wholesale from $1.00 to $1.50 a bushel. It is suggested that people plan to purchase within the next few days all their requirements in this direction.

White Island.

Albion—White Island—the ancient name of Britain—was probably given to it by the Gauls, on account of the white cliffs on the southeast coast.

ANSLEY-SEELY

At the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Henry F. Keever, 69 Maple street, Auburndale, Miss Margaret Sophia Seely was married Saturday morning to Dr. Charles Douglas Ansley, a prominent dentist of Auburndale. The bride is the sister of Mrs. Keever, who was before her marriage Miss Elizabeth Seely. Only the members of the families were present, so simple were all the arrangements. The ceremony at 9 o'clock was performed by Rev. George S. Butters, D.D., pastor of the Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church in Auburndale, and the bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Dr. Keever. She wore a brown traveling gown, with a brown turban to match, and carried a Prayer Book. Her only attendant was a little flower girl, her young niece, Mary Elizabeth Keever. Soon after the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Ansley left on their wedding journey, which will be through the White Mountains. On their return, they are to live at 4 Maple street, Auburndale. The bride is a graduate of the Newton Hospital and as a Red Cross nurse she went overseas in the World War for service in France with Unit No. 55.

Absolutely No More Twins.

A year ago last Christmas twins came to Bobby's house. As last Christmas drew near grandma asked Bobby what he wanted Santa Claus to bring. "Well," he answered, "most anything, except no more twins."

LONDON MOURNS FOR ITS KIWI

Only Apteryx in England Is No More —Wingless Bird Is Believed
Nearly Extinct.

The total extinction in England of the kiwi (or apteryx) has become a reality. The London Daily Mail announces the death of the Regent's park zoo's only specimen. The species is nearly extinct in New Zealand now, but the British Zoological society has written to the New Zealand government asking if just one more kiwi can be spared from the island sanctuary.

Zoologists will mourn the loss of the dwarf wingless ostrich more than the zoo visitors, for not one in ten thousand ever saw it while it lived there more than nine years. The keeper would turn out this queerest of birds every now and then, but the long-billed bundle of apathy and sleepiness scrambled back into its box as soon as released.

A curious point about the kiwi is the fact that its nostrils are at the tip of its long worm-hunting beak, and in the arduous of the chase it emits an unpleasant snuffling noise. Its mating call is a pig-like squeal.

England is responsible for the virtual extinction of this rare bird. British ships brought rats to New Zealand, so weasels were sent to exterminate the rats. When they had nearly wiped out the kiwi, the New Zealand government found a ratless island and consecrated it to the poor bird. But the problem of saving an idiot bird that puts all its eggs into one shell, so to speak, was a difficult one. The kiwi laid one egg a season, nearly as big as itself. Exceptional mothers would lay two eggs and then find it almost impossible to hatch both, as the ends would project out beyond their feathers as they sat on them.

FEW IDEAS OF REAL VALUE

Wireless Telegraphy and Telephony Are Still Comparatively in the Stages of Infancy.

"As every one knows, it is a comparatively simple thing to get a patent on anything, so long as you have a good patent attorney and are able to incorporate a few new knickknacks in your device. But such a thing as a really new idea, not to speak of a basic one, is scarcer than the proverbial hen's teeth."

Thus H. Gernsback, in the Radio Amateur News, comments on the rarity of anything new in wireless telegraphy or telephony. Inventors, he says, content themselves with making improvements in existing devices. These are good, but inventors should not get the idea that the last word has been said in basic principles. He says some one will probably discover a more sensitive detector than the vacuum tube; some one will devise a better transmitter; some one will invent a receiver that makes use of the eyes instead of the ears. "Get off the beaten path," he says.

To Give China a Bible.

Americans have spent $132,000 so far to give China a Bible in its own language, the Mandarin. And just now they are agreeing to spend $31,000 more to put the Bible into type and plates and to print and bind an edition. However, it is expected that copies will be sold to sufficient value to pay the printing bill, and it is further explained that these sums for expenditures are Mexican, which money is the standard of China at this time. It has been found by American scholars that the Chinese Mandarin is a wonderfully flexible language, capable of expressing almost every shade of meaning. More than twenty-five years has been the period of preparation, and foremost American and Chinese scholars have had part. The aim has been not only to give the Chinese people a Bible but to give them one that is pure in language and will set the standard for the republic that English translations set for the English-speaking world. This new Bible is for people who number more than a fourth of the world population.

Palestine to Have Stamps.

Palestine is the only country which has no postage stamp of its own. But representatives of the Zionist government have informed London philatelists that this anomaly promises soon to be rectified, for, with the establishment of Palestine as the national home of the Jewish nation, it is believed little time will be lost in emulating the examples of other small nations called into being by mandates of the peace conference by the issuance of distinctive stamps. Stamps sold by British army post offices in adjacent former enemy territory are being utilized by overprinting with the word "Palestine."

Material for Bridges.

Bridges now needed in national parks and forest reserves are to be built of the steel girders and trusses, and other bridge material, which was ready to be shipped to France, for the use of the American army, when the war ended. There is a vast amount of this material on hand, ready drilled and quite portable, 2,856 pounds being the maximum weight of any part.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Burden of Public Debts.

The annual interest on the debt of Great Britain is 12.92 per cent of her income, that of France 32.17 per cent, that of Italy 14.43 per cent, that of the United States 2.53 per cent, that of Germany 20.96 per cent, that of Austria 25.92 per cent, that of Hungary 24.78 per cent, that of Bulgaria 21.80 per cent, and that of Turkey 17.60 per cent.

THE KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

The Order Knights of Pythias in Newtonville has stood many years for the highest ideals in American citizenship, patriotic devotion to the country and loyalty to the civic welfare of the community. Since Newton Lodge, Knights of Pythias was instituted in this city, its Castle Hall has been the meeting place of men inspired to perform a service for their fellowmen and to aid in all that would tend toward the development of a well regulated community. To be a Pythian in this town means that you are alive to the social welfare of the community, that you are loyal to the fraternal conception of life and that you have enlisted in the cause of the development of brotherhood and fraternal fellowship of men. Perhaps no other fraternal society has performed a greater service to the community than has the Knights of Pythias during the last few years.

More than 750,000 men of the United States and Canada are members of the Order. There are fifty-four grand domains and over 7,500 lodges. The Order has proved itself loyal to country. More than 60,000 young men of the Order crossed the seas or were ready for embarkation when the armistice was signed.

The Pythian Order was the first to write into its Ritual the flag ceremony; the first American fraternity to enforce the sole use of rituals printed in English; the first to disbar from membership men engaged in the liquor traffic. It has made war on all things not safe and sane and does everything possible for making the world better.

In every relation and from every viewpoint, Pythianism is practical, elevating and consistently progressive.

Grant E. Hamilton of Judge.

In order to acquaint the public with the general telephone situation, and some of the reasons for delay in completing new installations—chief among which is the difficulty of getting the numerous kinds of necessary material—we have prepared a series of announcements of which this is the fourth.

Over Forty-One Thousand Telephone Stations Have Been Added to Our System Since January 1, 1920

Notwithstanding difficulty in providing equipment we have added to our system so far this year more telephones than there are in the combined cities of Lowell, Lawrence and Lynn.

Even in times when telephone equipment was plentiful and quickly obtainable, and the demands for our service were normal, we would have been proud of such an unusual development. Under present conditions it is by far the biggest job we have ever done. But yet applications are being received faster than we can provide for them and today we have

Over Twenty-Four Thousand Orders Awaiting Completion

We believe that our first obligation is to protect the existing service. Before we provide for new business we must be sure to properly take care of existing business. To do otherwise would mean a deteriorated and unsatisfactory service for all.

Present indications are that it will be many months before we shall be able to provide for all the new telephone service that is desired. Meanwhile, we will continue to secure all the equipment possible and use the resourcefulness of our engineers to provide substitutes for that which is unobtainable.

We are counting upon the people of New England to recognize that under existing conditions we are doing our best to first protect their existing service and then to provide for additional service as promptly as possible.

EDITORIAL

While we sympathize with the representatives of Nonantum in the action of the Read Fund trustees in limiting the annual picnic under their charge to the "children of Newton Corner", the explanation is rather simple, and the trustees have absolutely no choice in the matter. The will under which they act specifies that not exceeding $500 shall be used for an annual picnic or sleigh ride for the "children of Newton Corner" and surely the children of Nonantum cannot qualify under that classification. Simply because, in the past, former trustees and members of the city government have followed the path of the least resistance and allowed Nonantum children to enjoy the picnic, does not create a precedent which must be followed by the present trustees under the will. The truth is, that on account of the greatly increased cost of everything, the trustees were absolutely unable to run a picnic under the usual conditions for the money available, and hence they have taken the only sensible position, possible, and follow the exact provisions of the will.

Sometimes we hope that some generous citizen will provide for a continuance of the picnic, hitherto enjoyed by the children of Nonantum.

The Burrill-Burrell episode of last year and the Burrill incident of this year furnish ample evidence that, so far as the minor state offices are concerned, the present direct primary law does not give us the high class of officials which Massachusetts has a right to demand and to receive. Few voters are interested in any but the more prominent offices and, if they vote at all for what is known as the "state ticket", vote without much consideration and usually as the whim strikes them. If re-elected to the Legislature the editor of the GRAPHIC will do all in his power to correct this situation, either by a return to a carefully guarded convention system for minor officials or by an amendment to the constitution providing for a "short ballot".

We understand that there is a quiet movement under way in the 13th Congressional district to defeat the re-nomination of Congressman Robert Luce on account of his vote in favor of the Volstead act. Friends of the temperance cause should wake up to this fact and get to work for an endorsement of Mr. Luce which will clearly show that the 13th district believes in the 18th amendment.

Women who wish to vote at the State primary on September 7, must register as voters before the close of registration at 10 P. M. Wednesday, September 1st. There will be plenty of opportunities to register for the November election during the month of October for those who are unable to register for the primary.

The Backward Bird.

The flamingo performs a number of its daily duties in a backward or upside down manner. When the flamingo dines, it rests its head in the mud on the bottom of a shallow stream, and while it strains the insects out of the water it takes both a backward and an upside-down view of the world about it.

Companions.

On the heaths and moors where I have so long enjoyed the wonders of nature, I have never been, I can honestly say, alone; because when no man was with me, I had companions in every bee and flower and pebble; and never idle, because I could not pass a swamp, or a tuft of heather, without finding in it a tale of which I could but decipher here and there a line or two, and yet found them more interesting than all the books, save one, which were ever written on earth.—Kingsley.

West Point instruction.

The course of instruction at West Point is largely mathematical and professional. The principal subjects taught are mathematics, English, French, drawing, drill regulations of all arms of the service, natural and experimental philosophy, chemistry, chemical physics, mineralogy, geology, electricity, history, international, constitutional and military law, Spanish, civil and military engineering, art and science of war and ordnance and gunnery.

No Shoes for Traveling.

A few of my friends and I went to a station nearby to camp and pick blueberries. On the first day, while traveling through some swamp land our feet became wet. That night I built a fire and placed my shoes and socks on a log near the fire, intending to watch them until they dried. I fell asleep and my footwear burned. The next day I went home on the train barefooted, to the amusement of all the passengers.—Chicago Tribune.

Ancient Football.

China played football long before Japan, so long ago that the football was stuffed with hair until the fifth century, when the ingenious Chinese thought of inflating it.

NEED OF FOREIGN MARKETS

New York Business Man Tells How in His Opinion America May Control Trade Marts.

"If the United States expects to obtain its share of the world's commerce," a New York broker was overheard to say, "it must keep pace with other world powers with which it has to compete. Trained men are necessary in any line of business and foreign commerce is one line in which training is absolutely essential."

"I believe that the United States merchant marine is again to come into its own," continues the same broker in the Washington Post, "but the finest lot of merchandise on earth, coupled with the greatest fleet of merchant vessels ever known, is of no avail unless backed up by the selling ability and understanding of trained men who know how to place American goods in foreign markets."

"All the large mercantile firms are taking steps to train men specially for each country in which they expect to do business. The prospective salesman or manager for any particular country is educated in the language, history, traditions and peculiarities of that country, so that he can in a sense meet the people on their own ground. He knows just what to do under given conditions and is of vast value to the firm that employs him."

"The bureau of foreign and domestic commerce is doing a great deal of good in aiding in the introduction of American goods abroad, but I think the government should go a step further and have a regular school for such experts, maintained on the same standing and in the same relation to commerce in general as West Point stands to the army or Annapolis to the navy. The students should be taught every possible fact regarding European, Asiatic and South American countries, so that they could step forth as experts, each on some particular country. Such a school would amply repay the government in the large increase in volume of foreign business which would be attained."

SAVING DID HIM NO GOOD

Fate Had Laugh at Man Who Practiced Self-Denial in the Use of Tobacco.

"Six years ago," said Smithson, "I made up my mind that I was smoking too much. It didn't seem to affect my health in the least, but I thought it a foolish waste of money, and I decided to give it up."

"A very sensible idea," remarked Brownlow.

"So I thought at the time, I reckoned up as closely as I could how much I had been spending each day on cigars and tobacco. That sum I set aside each morning, and started a banking account with it. I wanted to be able to show exactly how much I had saved by not smoking."

"And how did it work?" inquired Brownlow.

"At the end of six years I had $150 in the bank."

"Good! Could you let me—"

"And a few days later," interrupted Smithson, "last Tuesday, in fact—the bank failed. You haven't got a cigar about you, have you?"

She Objected at Last.

He had just gone into the grocery business and did nothing except talk "shop-shop-shop" when he went to see his best girl. At first she endured it because she did not wish to offend him; later merely because she could find no way to remove him.

But her chance came. One night when he was at her house he picked up the telephone book and began idly to glance through it. His idle manner became one of interest as he scanned one page. Then her wrath overcame her. "It's been bad enough to hear you talk about nothing else but that old store," she stormed, "but it's too much for you to come to my house and go through the telephone book hunting out prospective customers."

Praise for High-Heeled Shoes.

Women's high-heeled shoes, regarded by medical science for years as production of nervous troubles, paralysis and other ills, have at last come in for professional commendation. That high-heeled shoes may be regarded as a preventive of consumption was the declaration of Doctor Gautiez before the Academy of Sciences.

Doctor Gautiez, following experiments, found, he declared, that the action of standing or walking on the toes is conducive to chest breathing as opposed to abdominal breathing. Many cases of consumption, he pointed out, have their origin in the fact that the upper lungs of abdominal breathers become diseased through lack of complete use—a condition from which the wearers of high-heeled shoes seldom suffer.

Tractor Which Walks.

A new type of tractor that has recently been developed has a series of legs and walks like a horse. There are four cranks, each having a set of four legs, giving the tractor sixteen legs on which it walks. In addition there are four wheels automatically operated by the tractor engine, so that they can be lowered to the roadbed, thus converting the machine into a motor truck. The feet are shod to conform to the ground conditions.

It is said that the tractor may be used to plow, seed, cultivate, harrow, mow and harvest, rake, furnish power for other machinery as a tractor and power plant and also to act as a truck for road work and heavy hauling.

Wesley's Physical Toughness.

Spare diet and constant exercise in the keen morning air helped to endow Wesley with that amazing physical toughness which enabled him, when eight-five years old, to walk six miles to a preaching appointment and declare that the only sign of old age he felt was that "he could not walk nor run quite so fast as he once did."—W. H. Frichett in "Wesley and His Country."

Jack in Garden.

Jack-in-the-pulpit, by nature a bog lover, is by no means as fastidious as the most of its clan, and a moist, slightly shaded spot in one corner of the yard will amply supply its demands, says the American Forestry association of Washington. This plant is a near relative of the cultivated calla, with purple and white or green and white striped blossoms—usually called flowers. The real flowers, though, are deep in the center of this showy dress, at the base of the central spadix, and may be either fertile or sterile.

Musical Instruments of Insects. Buzzing or humming is mainly due to rapid vibrations of the wings, which often strike the air more than a hundred times in a second, but there is sometimes a special quivering instrument near the base of the wings. Chirping or trilling is due to some sort of "stridulating" organ, one hard part being scraped against another, as the bow on the fiddle—it may be leg against wing.

CAN BEANS FOR USE IN WINTER

Valuable as Basis for Innumerable Salads and Various Vegetable Side Dishes.

CANNING DIRECTIONS GIVEN

Care Used in Following Instructions Will Be More Than Compensated
by Product Which Will Keep Well in Cold Weather.

Plenty of string beans in jars in the store closet means that the basis for innumerable salads and vegetable side dishes is at the housekeeper's command all during the winter months, so when this vegetable is at its best in the garden or on the market the wise woman cans enough for use when it is out of season. The following directions for canning string beans are given by the United States department of agriculture:

Select small, tender wax or green beans for canning purposes. Beans which have grown within the pod to any size are difficult to can, and the resulting product is not as satisfactory as one from younger beans. The sooner the beans are in the jar after picking the better the flavor and the more certain they are to keep. Wash, string and cut off the ends of the beans. Whole beans may be canned or they may be cut in short lengths.
Those cut diagonally are attractive in appearance.

Fill Jars With Hot Brine.

Place the beans in a wire sieve or in cheesecloth and blanch (scald) in hot water or live steam for from three to five minutes, or until the pod will bend without breaking. On removal, drain well and pack into hot jars which have been boiled for 15 minutes.
On the jars place rubbers which have been boiled in a solution of one tablespoonful of soda to one quart of water.
Cover beans with a hot brine made from four level tablespoonfuls of salt to four quarts of boiling water. Put on top which has been boiled 15 minutes. With glass-top jars put one wire bcl in position. Make screw tops almost half tight. Processing beans under steam pressure is recommended.
Quart jars should be processed 45 minutes under pressure of 10 pounds.

A Jar of String Beans Is More Attractive
When Neatly Packed.

With a hot-water canner or with a home-made canner made out of a wash boiler or lard can process the jars three hours if the one-period proceed-ure is used. Make sure the water is boiling before starting to count time.
When boiled, tighten the covers and cook.

If the intermittent boiling procedure is used, boil for one hour on three successive days. Before each boiling loosen the covers. Tighten covers after each boiling. When the processing is finished, lift the jars from the can-ner. Cool in a spot free from drafts; test and store. In event of leakage when jar is tested, remove rubber, put on new, wet, boiled one and process 15 minutes more.

Vinegar Aids in Preventing Spoilage.

During the past year the home economics experiment kitchen of the United States department of agriculture has been experimenting with the addition of a small amount of acid-vinegar to nonacid vegetables being canned. This work is being continued and the results thus far indicate that one to four tablespoonfuls of vinegar added to a quart jar help greatly in reducing the amount of spoilage.
When the vinegar is added, the time of processing can be reduced. For instance, it is found that corn, which ordinarily is difficult to can successfully, keeps well when four tablespoonfuls of vinegar are added to a quart jar processed three hours continuously. String beans, old peas and spinach are other vegetables successfully canned by this method.

The addition of vinegar to canned vegetables in the amounts mentioned modifies to some degree the natural flavor of the vegetable, but the result is not objectionable to most people and in many instances is not noticed.

Prevents Colors Running.

prints prevents colors from running.

NORUMBEGA PARK

Norumbega Park has its biggest attraction of the season in the magnificent park there the coming week in Man," a super-special photoplay, a picture starring a famed world figure, unapproached in his versatility by any other star, and an actor destined not only to be a dramatic sensation but the greatest winner of the year for the enterprising exhibitor.

This photoplay will be presented the entire week every afternoon and evening. There will also be the usual tractions, besides the orchestral provers," a drama in three acts by Frank Stayton, for the first time in America.

It has received the approval of Miss Horniman, director of the famous Manchester Repertory Theatre that first introduced to the public the work of Stanley Houghton, Harold Brighouse, Allan Monkhouse, and other leaders among the younger school of English dramatists. It was first acted by Miss Horniman's company in London, and was then taken by her to London, where at the Coronet Theatre, the birthplace of many famous plays, it received the approval of metropolitan audiences. Its presentation at the Copley Theatre will be an event in the history of a theatre that has offered much that is new and important to the Boston public.

and other leading parts will be played

Nation's "Balance of Trade."

"Balance of trade" is an expression used by political economists to indicate the difference between the value of the exports and imports of a country. This theory of the balance of trade grew out of the mercantile theory, which considers the possession of gold to be the chief object of trade.
Hence, there rose the belief that a nation increases in wealth to the extent that the money value of its exports exceeds that of imports.

OLD BUSINESS TO MOVE

On September 1st, the stove and furnace repair business conducted by Mr. E. E. Snyder will be taken over by Mr. James J. Downey and moved from its present quarters in the Eliot Block, Newton to 370 Centre street.

This is one of the oldest business firms in the city having been established in 1876 by the late S. O. Thayer, who occupied the store in the basement of the tower of Eliot Block, which had just been completed at that time. On the death of Mr.
Thayer in 1904, the business was continued by his son-in-law, Mr. Snyder, who is now retiring.

44 years in one store is something of a record in these days of constant changes, to which can be added the remarkable fact that during all those years, Mr. John F. Griffin has been continuously employed by Mr. Thayer and Mr. Snyder and will continue his work with Mr. Downey.

POLICE NOTES

Monday was a busy day in the Police Court seven men being tried on charges of assault of police officers.

In one case the complaint was made by patrolman Joseph Reeves who accuses John Reynolds of Collins avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., of robbery and assault and Henry Alheit of Dalrymple avenue, Woodhaven, N. Y., of assault and robbery. Early that morning Reeves was walking on Beacon street, Waban, when he heard profanity and found Reynolds and Alheit, with a young woman, seated in an automobile and engaged in an argument. He warned them and when they became insulting Reeves asked to see their registration certificates. One handed him a certificate but as he was reading it in the light from the car's lamps the two men he states, attacked and beat him and took away his revolver and club. They then sped away in their machine and as they started Reeves claims they fired one shot at him from his revolver. He notified police headquarters, an automobile patrol was sent out and the car was overtaken in Wellesley. The girl had disappeared. Reeves' revolver was found by the roadside near the place where he was attacked. The police are trying to establish the ownership of the automobile. Both men deny their guilt. Reynolds is twenty-six years old and Alheit thirty-four.

Raymond Arseneault of Chestnut street, charged with assault on a police officer, was held in $500 for the Superior Court, after appealing a sentence. Edmund J. Devrier, 20, Dalby street, on the same charge, was given a six months' sentence in the House of Correction, which he appealed. Edward J. Shea of Gardner street, in the same case, was also held in $500. Harold DeWolfe of Newton was arraigned with the others for drunkenness, to which he pleaded guilty, and was also given a two months' sentence in the House of Correction, which he appealed. He was held in $300 for assault upon an officer. According to the testimony, on Saturday night the men created a disturbance in front of the house occupied by A. Dingrass, Watertown street. They entered an automobile belonging to Dingrass, and it is alleged, were attempting to make off with it when officer Feeley appeared on the scene. He ordered the men out of the car and they put up a stiff battle. Feeley knew them all and they were arrested.

Herbert Johnson of Roxbury, charged with drunkenness was given a sentence in the House of Correction, appealed, and was held in $500. Last Saturday night Johnson, with four or five companions, it is alleged, attacked officer McLoughlin, who was on special duty at Norumbega Park. McLoughlin was given a beating, but managed to hold Johnson.

John R. Murray, a teamster, who once lived in Newton, was given a six-months' sentence in the House of Correction the same day, on a charge of non-support of his crippled wife, who has been for years an inmate of the City Home. Murray has been sentenced two times on the same charge. The testimony showed that Overseer of the Poor Oswald McCourt had ordered a warrant out for Murray a year ago. Murray has been away from Newton since that time. He was arrested at the home of his sister in Newton Upper Falls. Testimony was offered showing that Murray had not seen his wife for 11 years.

SOME FISHERWOMAN

Mrs. E. E. Worden, of Newton, insists that she is eighty-two years old, but a roving pickered that she lifted from the depths of Lake Whitehall last Monday must have thought her eighty-two years young as she yanked him abruptly from the water and landed him triumphantly in her boat. Of sturdy build and fighting breed, she sure did fight, but so did Mrs. Worden, and when the little unpleasantness ended, Mr. Pickered had met his Waterloo, and his tribe had lost one of the biggest of their big chiefs. Mrs. Worden was showered with congratulations by all the fisherfolk of the little summer colony as they came, singly and in groups, to gaze upon her trophy—twenty-five inches long, of corresponding girth, and swinging five pounds on the scale. Although it was a record catch the spry Newton fisherwoman wondered why so much was made of a feat which she took as a matter of course, as she quietly announced her intention to "do better next time."

MAJESTIC THEATRE—"The Little Whopper," termed by the critics as the musical comedy exquisite, has opened the season of the Shubert Majestic theatre, Boston, in a blaze of glory. The original company and original production with a record of 250 times at the Casino, New York, is seen there the cast being headed by Vivienne Segal. The third big week will be opened with a holiday matinee Labor Day, Sept. 6th. The engagement is for four weeks only, ending Saturday, September 18.

"The Little Whopper" is by Otto A. Harbach, co-author of "Mary," with music by Rudolf Friml and lyrics by Bide Dudley. Mr. Harbach has told an interesting story of Kitty Wentworth, a boarding school girl, who starts all the trouble by telling a little whopper, finally involving a dozen others in a network of lies. In order to save Kitty from the consequences of her whopper, a young bachelor, known as a conformed woman-hater, becomes the husband pro tem of the fair prevaricator. He then finds himself in a dilemma and in order to protect her reputation is almost forced to marry her in earnest although in the meantime he has fallen desperately in love with her school chum, the daughter of a truth-telling judge.

The make-believe wife eloped with the man to whom she is really engaged and the judge is so implicated in the elopement that he is forced to tell a little whopper, the first one of which he has ever been guilty. Through this maze of farcical situations the author has woven a sweet and tender love story.

WALDORF THEATRE, WALTHAM

When the Waldorf Theatre reopens next Monday, August 30th for the season it will offer to the playgoers the opportunity of witnessing for the first time ever presented on any stage in this country or Canada the seven-reel screen drama, "Lahoma." This picture will not appear in any other theatre in the country until weeks after its showing here and the management has turned a trick in fildom seldom equalled, by obtaining the first release and first showing of a picture that is sure to create a sensation when ever or wherever it is shown. The management announces that the matinees are to start promptly at 2.15 and the evening performances at 6.30 and continuous until 10.30. This becomes necessary because of the length of the programs this season. There are to be four big acts from Keith's circuit and also the Waldorf Weekly review of current events in pictures. The reorganized Waldorf concert orchestra is to be one of the pleasing fixtures of the theatre. The interior of the playhouse has been thoroughly renovated, and presents a most attractive as well as a pleasing appearance. Don't fail to be present at the opening performances.

USING THE SUN AS A STOVE

Device Invented by American Scientist Is Acknowledged Valuable Fuel Saver.

Baking bread and roasting meat on the summit of a mountain without fuel is possible by the use of a device invented by a scientist of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C. The intensity of the sun's rays is harnessed, the unusual energy is capitalized, and food can be cooked beyond the line of perpetual snows.

An astronomical mirror at the Smithsonian Institution is capable of receiving and measuring the energy of the sun rays, calculating that in summer the solar luminary transmits upon each acre of land energy equivalent to 7,500 horse-power.

The so-called "solar cooker" consists of a half-cylinder of iron lined with mirror glass, which catches the rays of the sun and concentrates them upon a metal tube that is the half-cylinder's axis. The tube contains oil, which expands and becomes lighter, by the heat as it passes through the tube. The latter is continued to form a loop outside the half-cylinder, thus making a sort of endless chain.

Passing through the loop, the oil cools. However, the sun's heat forcing the oil through the portion of the tube inside the half-cylinder, compels the cooled oil to follow it, otherwise there would be a vacuum. So while the sun shines there is a continuous circulation of oil. The "loop" passes through a box which contains an oven. Heat from the oil warms the oven and does the desired cooking.

POSITION CALLS FOR ABILITY

Englishman Chosen to Administer Affairs in Jerusalem Has Been Given a Hard Task.

The office of governor of Jerusalem, once occupied by Pontius Pilate, is now held by Col. Ronald Storrs, a graduate of Cambridge university and son of the dean of Rochester college, England.

His task is one to test the administrative ability of any man. Jerusalem is a city of disunions, where whatever may come of the future, for the moment Zionists and Arabs are passionately divided, and to steer a just path between them and induce them to join him on that path is thankless work.

It is to that task, however, that he chiefly devotes himself. Twice a week he has meetings of his favorite pro-Jerusalem society, where French, Italians, British, Americans, rabbis, Zionists, leaders, commercial men of standing and others who are in any way prominent in the life of the city are brought together and in the course of debate led to see that they have in common a single citizenship. His motto as governor is "unify and be friends."

Searching for the Point.

John George, executive secretary of the High street M. E. church of Muncie, who is a Scot, was listening attentively to a story about two fishermen who had been having good luck fishing from a boat in a lake. They wished to remember the spot where they had caught the fish, but looking shoreward they saw no landmark that would assist them in finding the spot on another day.

"Finally," said the story teller, "one of them had a happy thought and cut a notch in his boat at this spot."

The crowd laughed, except George, who appeared puzzled. Finally, he, too, burst out laughing.

"I was just thinking," he explained, "what a good joke it would have been on those fishermen if the next day they were unable to get the same boat!"—Indianapolis News.

Incendiary Bullets.

The incendiary bullets used during the war, mostly fired from machine guns carried by airplanes, were in effect miniature high explosive shells. Those supplied to our armies (millions of them were made at the Frankford arsenal) were of brass, hollowed out to hold a composition of which the principal ingredient was barium nitrate. To set this off, each bullet had a priming charge of magnesium and red lead.

An ordinary rifle bullet, of course, is solid. The incendiary bullet is of wholly different construction, though of the same caliber, being meant to carry flame. Its discharge sets fire to the explosive stuff contained in it.—Kansas City Star.

New Grade of Rubber.

Chryslis, a new high grade rubber, is vulcanized without difficulty. It is produced by the Chrysothamnus, or rabbit bush, a genus of shrubs yielding in different species from 1.93 to 2.83 per cent, and in one individual plant as high as 6.57. Of Chrysothamnus nauseosus, the chief species, 22 varieties are known. 12 of them contain chryslis. The plants are large shrubs, maturing in six or eight years, with an average weight of four to six pounds, and abound in many parts of North America. The rubber occurring in the cells and not as a latex concentrates near the soil line.

A Strike.

"I'll show 'em," said the hen as she kicked the porcelain egg out of the nest.

"They can't make a brick layer out of me,"—Carnegie Puppet.
